Gov. Schweiker Introduces New Farm Show Complex

Additions, New Construction To Renew Roots Of Agriculture At Farm Show

With scissors in hand, Gov. Mark Schweiker, right, along with Sam Hayes Jr., state secretary of agriculture, usher in a new era of Farm Show during ribbon-cutting ceremonies Tuesday morning in the new Exhibit Hall at the Farm Show Complex. About a thousand people attended. More information about who built the Farm Show, as well as a history of the Farm Show itself, is scheduled for the Showcase Issue on Jan. 4 in Lancaster Farming. HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It's the season of giving, and the state has given big.

To the tune of about $86 million, Pennsylvania has "put our financial support where our emotional outlook and pride are," said Gov. Mark Schweiker.

Along with State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr., on Tuesday morning Schweiker hoisted up a large pair of scissors and cut the ribbon to a new era in state farm shows — expansion and new construction of a brand-new Farm Show Complex that makes it the "number one exposition facility in the nation," Schweiker said.

In front of more than 1,000 farm show contractors, workers, friends and family in the new Exhibit Hall, Schweiker, assisted by whom he calls "Coach Hayes," dedicated the new Farm Show Complex to the "number one industry in the state — farming and agribusiness," Schweiker noted.

On Tuesday, the hall housed new farm equipment and entertainment by two dozen members of the Biglerville High School Jazz Band.

Schweiker remarked about the importance of Farm Show before cutting the yellow ribbon, inscribed with "Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Historic Construction Farm Show Complex 2002."

Hayes also noted that the governor "has always said 'yes' to agriculture. Always." Hayes noted his own work with the legislature and the members of the Farm Show Commission, including Farm Show Director Dennis Grumbine and staff. They provided a "vision to make it possible," Hayes said, "to build this magnificent addition."

Hayes noted that Schweiker was "here to celebrate what you and I have dreamt about for

NEW CUMBERLAND (Cumberland Co.) — Holstein USA officers are reporting a major boost in the organization's financial status as CEO John Meyer entered his second year at the helm in 2002.

Tom Nunes, Holstein USA vice president from California, spoke to about 40 members and delegates at a Region 2 meeting in New Cumberland Tuesday.

"We're not out of the woods yet," Nunes said. While 2001 saw operating losses of $2.3 million, year-end projections for 2002 show losses will total about $500,000 — an improvement of $1.8 million over last year.

Record-low milk prices, along with the continued decline in registered Holstein numbers across the country, have created extra challenges in securing a sound fiscal future for Holstein USA.

Since Meyer took over as CEO in July of 2001, belt-tightening measures have included cutting 12 staff positions down to a total of 150 personnel, lowering insurance claims, reducing staff and board member travel, consolidating staff into one building, and reducing advertising and printing expenses.

The financial turnaround came after Holstein USA recorded $15.5 million in cumulative operating losses during the 1990s, a decade in which it "leaned heavily on its reserve fund" while

CATTLE Compared to Thursday's lower market, slaughter steers sold firm to 1 00 higher Bidding was fairly active on all grades, although mixed at times due to the quality After Monday's bids were only steady to firm due to the plainer supply, Tuesday's run saw the increase in quality it took to entice buyers to give a little more The Board was also somewhat supportive as February live cattle contracts closed 1 30 higher on Monday at 79 12 although Tuesday's Board was slightly off closing down 27 at 78 85 A very light test of Holstein steers and fed heifers sold steady to firm On a run that included nearly 450 head slaughter cows sold weak to 1 00 lower with the bulk of the decrease on the fleshy cows The quality of the run was about average with quite a few cows coming through the ring with some fill on them Bidding was only moderate at best as buyers are fairly reluctant to procure a lot of cows going into the upcoming holiday shortened weeks Slaughter bulls sold with a weaker undertone on the few that were comparable There was a fancy set of young clean bulls on Tuesday's market which drew some good attention from the buyers The supply included 42 percent steers, 6 percent heifers, 47 percent cows, 3 percent bulls with the balance feeders

CATTLE Compared to Tuesday slaughter steers sold 50 to 1 00 lower The supply was very mixed as cattle were either coming through the door over- finished, full or just right Although bids did match the uneven quality as buyers didn't hesitate to discount the heavies or the 4's and 5's It was apparent that many producers were waiting for the market to hit its peak before shipping their stock to town and this thinking came back to bite a few producers as they watched their steers tip the scales at over 1550 lbs However even when a 1600 pounder brings 65 00 it's still over 1000 00 per head, which is a pretty good lick The Board has been very unpredictable this week as the February live cattle contract was as high as 79 12 on Monday, closing at 78 57 on Thursday as traders try to keep aligned with the cash trade Speaking of cash steers, the Western direct feed yards are lined up to lose another 1 00 this week with early sales coming in at mostly 72 00 A very good test of Holstein steers sold with a firmer undertone Slaughter heifers were in very tight supply, therefore a trend was not established The bulk of the Breaking and Boning cow supply sold with a firmer tone in continued good demand Lean cows sold weak to 50 lower due to light buyer attendance Slaughter bulls sold with a higher undertone on a very good run The supply included 40 percent steers, 5 percent heifers, 36 percent cows, 7 percent bulls, with the balance feeders

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
December 18, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts 2076 Last Week 432 Year Ago 1320

There were no pigs that went back to feed last week, therefore a trend will not be available this week There was some pretty good interest in owning feeders, whether it is to put them on feed long term, or to just hold them until the large holiday runs lessen The bulk of the very large slaughter pig run sold sharply lower Although it is to be expected when the supply jumps from 400 to over 2000 in a week, as producers try to get them to town to try and hit the good holiday demand When the supply heavily outweighs the demand, as it did Wednesday, you usually have a pretty big wreck on your hands However, it could have been worse had there not been several buyers on hand that do need to fill some cooler space for the holiday This is the second large slaughter pig run the area has seen this week, as Carlisle, PA recorded over 1300 head at their graded sale on Monday, with the PA Dept of Ag reporting very good slaughter demand at the early week sale as nearly all of the large run was sent to the kill floor All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights

December 17, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was about fair as dealers kept orders limited to regularly committed product and maintained closely cleared inventories. Offerings of the 3 to 3.5 pound birds were in good balance and the heavier sizes were sufficient. Movement through retail and distributive channels was sluggish. The market tone was fully steady on the 3.5 pound and lighter birds and steady on the heavier weights.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

DECEMBER 23–29, 2002

BOXING DAY, DEC. 26

BOXING DAY

Why is the day after Christmas called Boxing Day? Is it really because of the many boxes being returned to the stores? Actually, the name originated in the old custom of giving Christmas gifts to servants and tradespeople on the day after Christmas. The original boxes were made of earthenware, each was quickly broken open to obtain the monetary gift inside. Nowadays, a gift of money is usually contained in a greeting card and given before the holiday. Where celebrated (Great Britain, Canada, and Australia), Boxing Day is welcomed as a quiet day of recuperation from the season's hectic festivities.

The gift-bringer always finds an open door.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Recycle holiday wrapping papers and ribbons. Most papers can be ironed smooth of any creases.

POTATO SOUP VERDE

- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 4 large potatoes, peeled and cut small
- 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
- water, as directed
- salt, to taste
- 2 to 3 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
- 1/3 to 1/2 cup warm skim milk (optional)

Saute onion in oil until translucent. Add potatoes, cheese, parsley, pepper, and spinach. Add water just to cover, adding more if soup becomes too thick. Cook, covered, over low heat, stirring occasionally. When potatoes are soft, put soup through blender, add salt and vinegar. Add milk if desired.

Makes 6 servings

OPINION

Yes, Virginia . . .

From the Editorial Page, New York Sun, 1897:

We take pleasure in answering thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of The Sun:

I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "If you see it in The Sun, it's so."

Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

— Virginia O'Hanlon

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a sceptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The external light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if you did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus? Thank God he lives and lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay 10 times 10,000 years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

In the early years of our country, our government was funded almost exclusively through tariffs. Even when tariffs became a less important revenue source, they remained in place because they served another very important purpose. Tariffs protected American workers from being undercut by very low wages in other nations. Tariffs enabled the existence of a strong middle class and prosperity in manufacturing and agriculture.

Several decades ago, however, economic planners with no national loyalty and presumably much personal gain at stake began to deride tariffs as an impediment to economic growth. The push was on to scour the earth for cheaper and cheaper products made with cheaper and cheaper labor with no regard for American workers.

Now Is The Time

To Remember The Reason For The Season

This time of the year it is especially important that we take time to count our blessings. This year has been a tough one, with many challenges for farmers.

A prolonged drought combined with low prices for most agricultural commodities including milk, poultry products, pork, beef, and grain put most farm operations into a tight squeeze. Some may have suffered setbacks in their health.

In spite of this, we all can find something for which to be thankful. It is especially important for our children see us model gratitude for the good things we have even in hard times.

All of us can find some needy folks in our communities who have it tougher than us. Make it a family project to get involved in helping others. Recently I came across some facts that help put our situation in perspective. Twenty-five percent of the world lives on $1 or less per day and 47 percent of the world lives on $2 or less per day. If you have food in a refrigerator, clothes in your closet, a roof over your head, and a bed to sleep in, you are wealthier than 75 percent of the world's population.

While farms are great places to raise a family, they are also very demanding. If we are not careful, the workload can prevent us from developing the family life we desire. Take time to evaluate your life and make sure things are in a healthy balance. Make a special effort to slow down and make some Christmas memories with your family this year.

To Properly Care For Your Horse

Lancaster County livestock agent Chester Hughes reports neglect is the worse thing that happens to horses during the winter months.

Most horses are turned out to pasture, and we only see them in the dark at feeding time. In the summer months, it is easy to provide proper care for the horse, when we are riding every day and want to make certain the horse is fit and in good health.

About the worst thing for a horse during the winter months is ice, most importantly, the ice that covers the watering trough or water bucket. Water for the horse during cold weather is too often overlooked. The water may freeze up, making it inaccessible to the horse.

Mature horses need about 10 gallons of water a day. To keep the horse healthy during freezing weather, owners should make sure an ample supply of fresh water is always available. Excessively cold water will decrease the horse's consumption of water.

Ideally, water should be maintained at a temperature of 40 degrees Fahrenheit. When the horse drinks less water, feed intake will decrease. A reduction in feed intake results in less energy being available to maintain body temperature and body weight during the cold months. Reduced feed and water intake could lead to colic and an impacted intestinal tract in the horse.

To help prevent water consumption problems in the winter, water should be made as accessible to the horse as possible. Heated waterers are one way to assure your horse an ample supply of drinking water. If electric water heaters are used, the water tank should be checked every day to insure that the heater is not shorting out and shocking the horse. An electric shock would prevent the horse from drinking.

To Learn To Manage Your Small Woodland Parcel

The forests of Pennsylvania are being converted to other uses and divided into smaller and smaller parcels. The result is an increasing number of landowners on a smaller forest land base, thus making traditional forest management activities more difficult to practice.

A number of factors are driving this land conversion and development. These include rising property taxes, unexpected estate taxes, and the inability to manage the forest because of state or local regulations. Failing to consider the impacts of property taxes or estate taxes can disrupt effective management, result in abandoning forest ownership, or cause fragmenting the property in such a way that the benefits of past and future forest management are lost.

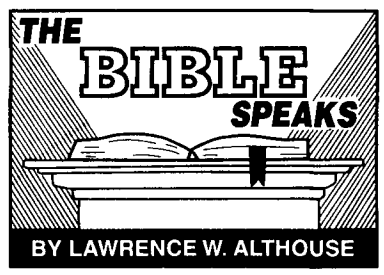
In recent years, many innovative approaches have emerged to help forest landowners deal with these issues. You can learn how these tools can help you get the most out of your woodland by attending the Forestland Conservation Conference on Jan. 16 at the Central Pennsylvania Institute of Science and Technology in Pleasant Gap. This conference will discuss the factors affecting forestland conversion or parcelization and describe some innovative approaches to help keep landowners managing their forests.

For more information and to register, contact David R. Jackson, extension educator, forest resources, at (814) 355-4897. Registration must be received by Jan. 9.

Quote Of The Week:

"And the angel said to them, 'Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord.'"

— Luke 2:10-12 RSV



BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

KEEPING JESUS IN THE MANGER

Background Scripture:
Luke 2:1-20.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 9:1-7.

If God was ready to reveal himself in the Christ child born in Bethlehem, it would appear that the world was not. In three decades this infant would grow into the man that we worship as Lord and Savior of the whole world. But baby Jesus was not given the red carpet treatment. In Bethlehem, Mary and Joseph found that "there was no place for them in the inn."

So, instead of a place of honor, Jesus was born in a stable and laid in a feed trough for animals. We have so "prettified" the stable and the manger that we fail to realize what a lowly, unsuitable place it was for the birth of a baby in general and for God's Son in particular. Today, we'd invite a host of the most notable citizens. But there were no VIPs at the Bethlehem stable, no press, no keys to the city.

Instead of city officials or religious leaders, Jesus was visited by the most common of workers, shepherds from the fields outside Bethlehem. Only these rough men heard the angelic chorus that sang, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased" (2:14). Of course, when the shepherds left the stable, "they made known the saying which had been told them concerning this child . . ." (2:18). But who was likely to believe such simple men?

'Jesus Christ!'

Today, his name is well known far and wide. Churches, hospitals, and places of higher learning bear his name It is so commonly known today that among non-Christians as well as Christians it is probably most frequently uttered as a profane exclamation. So, for all this familiarity, the world has not yet made room for the Christ. Even within our churches we may wonder whether there is room for him.

Someone once told me that the only thing they had against puppies is that "they grow up to be dogs." The same thing might be said of kittens — and even babies, even the infant Jesus. Now that Christ has come into our world, many people do their very best to keep him in the manger.

A baby in the manger doesn't seem very threatening. We can control infants because they are not designed to be autonomous. But, if we cannot keep him out of the world, we can keep him in his place. March under his banner. Use his name, of course. Spread that name like peanut butter over everything, but don't let Jesus out of the manger!

What will we do with the Prince of Peace this Christmas, as from one end of the nation to another we clamor for war? Keep him in the manger! How can we handle this Christ who comes "with great joy" not only to us but "to all the people?" That includes Christians, Jews, Moslems, Hindus, and Buddhists; Latinos, Blacks, and Orientals; Israelites and Palestinians; Democrats and Republicans, Liberals and Conservatives, Haves and Have-Nots? Keep him in the manger!

Self-Salvation

The angels proclaim the birth "of a Savior who is Christ the Lord" (2:1). Several decades ago, when the Roman Catholic Church contemplated declaring Mary "Co-Redemptrix of the race," a cartoonist pictured Mary and Jesus with the latter exclaiming, "Please, Mother, I'd rather do it myself!"

Well, wouldn't we all? Wouldn't we prefer to save ourselves and not have to bring Jesus into it? Sooner or later we come to realize that we cannot do it ourselves. If we want salvation, we cannot keep Jesus in the place to which we have consigned him.

William Barclay writes, "That there was no room in the inn was symbolic of what was to happen to Jesus. The only place where there was room for Jesus was on a cross."

GREETINGS FROM MOLDOVA

- Cheese market remains weak.
- Butter holding steady.
- Market awaiting new reports.

Greetings from Moldova. I'm doing volunteer work in this former USSR country as part of a CNFA (Citizen's Network for Foreign Affairs) Agribusiness project for a two-week assignment. Moldova is a small country between Romania and Ukraine. I am working with a small dairy cooperative in a remote rural village.

First, the U.S. markets for dairy. Not much happened last week. USDA reported cheese demand for holiday purchases has begun to ease. Barrels held steady at $1 per pound and blocks showed signs of weakness. Butter prices held steady at $1.11 per pound despite the expected increase in churning activity and a slow down in holiday buying.

The market is basically awaiting two very important reports next week. The milk production report will be released Monday. It will give us direction for cow numbers on U.S. dairy farms. Are they still increasing or are they starting to decline? Also, the Cold Storage report will be released on Friday. This may give us some idea how demand for butter and cheese is doing. Low inventories will imply strong holiday buying.

I'm here in Moldova developing a marketing plan for a new one-year-old dairy cooperative in a remote rural village in Ignatei, which is in northeast Moldova. The Vita-Lact Dairy Cooperative is a very new concept for this former USSR country, especially in the village. They are making good progress, though. Right now the villagers are producing about one fourth the level of milk production in the U.S. So much can be done here. They received their monthly milk check the other day. The average check was 180 lei, or about $13 in our currency. This is hard cash and is a big contribution to these people, CNFA, whom I'm working with, is a USDA AID funded project.

I'm spending about half my time in the capital city of Chrisinau and half in the village. Before anyone asks how my European vacation is going, understand this. It is about 8-10 degrees Fahrenheit here, which is very cold! The farm house I'm staying in is heated with wood and coal. However, they don't start the fire until about 4 p.m. That's because they work all day on the farm and really aren't cold. All the water is hand-drawn from a well. The bread, cheese, sausage and meat, and canned foods are all made at home.

All the animals are fed by hand. Need some corn to feed livestock? Well, you've got to head for the corn crib and then remove the kernels by hand. I'm helping with the farm chores while in the village. While I'm very cold, I am enjoying myself. And we are making excellent progress with the village cooperative. I'll be making a presentation on the marketing plan to the coop board next week.

If the technology works, I'll be updating you again from Moldova next week.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
December 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending Dec 13, 2002 Total Receipts 430,400, last week 403,400 Direct 62,300, last week 57,000 Video/Internet 33,800 head, last week 27,600 Auction Receipts 334 300, last week 318,700 This week's reported auction volume included 35 percent over 600 lbs and 43 percent heifers

Compared to last week, feeder and stocker cattle markets across the country were mostly mixed Price trends fell on both sides of steady in the Plains states and through the Midwest, with the exception being the Southeast where markets were predominantly weak to 2 00 lower Receipts have fallen off significantly in the South and the quality of the offerings have become uneven, making it hard for order buyers to put together loads to send west

The up and down prices in the central part of the US were a result of demand being very good early in the week and then slacking off on Wednesday when High Plains feedlots surrendered this week's showlists 1 00 lower at 73 00 Pressure to sell came from a sudden drop in the CME Live Cattle Futures, where December contracts lost 1 85 on Wednesday and Thursday The threat of delivery caused long positions to jump ship, which lined up the cash and futures market perfectly by the end of the week This is exactly how the system was designed to work and why so many feeders manage risk by hedging on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange The CME Feeder Cattle Futures contracts also played a big part in this week's business Many cattle producers sold their feeder cattle for future delivery this week and based the sale price off the Board Basis trading was active near the major feeding areas as many sellers have the option of selecting which day the basis is calculated from Feeder Futures held up fairly well this week in the face of fading Live Cattle, which seemed like a prime time for many to pick their day

Temperatures have turned extremely mild across most of the nation and especially in winter wheat country Following last week's blanket of snow, wheat couldn't be grown better in a greenhouse The demand for replacement cattle is also starting to grow and was reported to be excellent on the 9 000 head offered in Billings, MT this week Fancy bred heifers and young bred cows brought over 1000 00 per head Cattle numbers are currently down and the market is rising, causing folks to increase production and the cycle continues

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, November 2002 uniform prices Northeast $12 31 Mideast $11 17, Southeast $12 84, Florida $14 32, and Western New York (a state order) $11 86 at the base city or county in the orders (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported) During November, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 11 70 billion pounds, up 1 8% from November 2001 The following are the November- to-November changes for selected states Texas +8%, New York +1%, Pennsylvania -0 8%, Vermont -1 4% Virginia -2 0%, Florida -2 8% and Kentucky -8 4%

Milk production is mixed The storms each of the last two weeks have taken their toll on milk output Increases seen prior to the storms have turned to slight decreases This is particularly evident in Virginia, North Carolina and other Mid-Atlantic states Milk production is increasing in other Southeastern states and about steady in the Northeast

Fluid milk supplies continue to be reported as tight This is surprising to some contacts who expected to see slower sales and more surplus milk So far this week this is not the case Most milk suppliers and bottlers indicate very good Class I milk sales However, school lunch needs will drop to almost nothing late this week Bottlers hope that retail sales during the holidays will offset a good portion of the lost school lunch sales Florida's bottled milk demand has been very good and milk handlers are still importing milk from the Mid-Atlantic area Surplus milk volumes have been light, but most plant contacts expect to be running heavy this time next week Contacts state that, from a plant processing point of view, it is good that Christmas and New Years fall on Wednesday In fact, many bottlers already use Wednesday as one of their "down days" each week

The condensed skim market is about steady Volumes are increasing slightly, but producers seem to prefer selling wet solids rather than dry them Prices are unchanged, but as offerings increase, seller may be forced to be more competitive or have to dry it

The fluid cream market is mixed Demand is still quite good for some suppliers, sharply slower for others There are some ice cream plants that have already closed for the holidays, while others continue to operate through the weekend There is more extra cream trying to clear the market and that should be the case all through the holiday period Cream cheese makers have been taking some extra loads Eggnog production is drawing to a close Some plants expect to make their last batch late this week while other may make a little sometime next week Production of bottled cream, dips, and sour cream are all holding at fairly good levels In recent years, it is more common for these items to have good sales/consumption well into January Spot prices are steady to lower this week As cream volumes increase multiples have eased, but the CME weekly average did increase fractionally Churning is starting to increase and excess cream continues to clear to local and Midwestern butter makers been 40,000 copies of the prior editions of the brochure distributed, with many success stories.

Here are just a few of the responses from people who have found this brochure useful:

"The farming facts brochure is a great resource to convey the importance of agriculture as it relates to our community and is very useful when communicating with local government officials or the nonfarm public." — Daniel Heller, Flintrock Farms.

"When speaking to family and friends that are unfamiliar with agriculture, this brochure provides the foundation for your message. Plus, people can take the brochure home with them. It's written in a format that people can relate to." — Lowell Fry, Fulton Bank.

"We use the Farm Facts when groups visit our facility, or conduct meetings and ensure that all employees receive a copy which we refer to at various meetings. Why? We have discovered that most individuals have no idea of the scope and impact of agriculture in regards to the economic contribution, the labor force and its positive effect on the environment such as ground water replenishment." — Jamie Rowley, Wenger's Feed Mill Inc.

The new edition points out of our most noted traits — as being the most productive nonirrigated farming county in the U.S. I'm sure most of us have heard this many times before, but it is important to remind ourselves of the important role agriculture plays in our community, which should never be underestimated.

In creating the third edition of the Farm Facts, our goal was to convey new areas of information that are becoming important issues in Lancaster County or have a significant value that many may not realize.

A new feature on the brochure is the correlation between agriculture and the tourism industry, of which the success and growth has been traditionally based on the beauty and culture of our farming community.

A unique study highlighted on the brochure is a gauge of the amount of farmland lost to development vs. the amount of farmland preserved. With the recent drought and discussion of water use, we included statistics of an average farm's contribution to ground water and then compared that to the same farm becoming developed into houses.

Another interesting study highlighted on the brochure is the impact of land use, which compares agriculture to residential, commercial and industrial uses and examines the cost of services

Poinsettia Production Requires Precise Attention

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — They are probably somewhere in your home right now. Perhaps sitting on a side table, perched in the living room, or lending their vibrant hue to the window above the kitchen sink.

For years now, the poinsettia has been synonymous with Christmas, a decoration as much a part of holiday finery as holly boughs or evergreen trees.

At Frysville Farm, the Fry family knows firsthand the work that goes into producing the vividly colored plants that customers cart away.

The family began to grow poinsettias in 1972, probably about 5,000 a year in those early years, estimates Anthony Fry, son of founders Morton and Beckie Fry. Fry, along with brothers Vincent and M. Simon, work full-time on the operation, with occasional help from their parents, spouses, and their sister Victoria.

More recently, the business has expanded to include more than 80,000 plants, most from their own stock, he said. Hybrids are brought in from California or Central America to propagate from; however, 95 percent is propagated on the home farm.

The poinsettia is of the Euphorbia family, which means that the vibrant colors of the plant, commonly mistaken for petals, are actually modified leaves.

The "flower" is actually a modified leaf that has changed from green to a color, said Fry. The tiny petalless flower — the cyanthia — is generally yellow in poinsettias.

The program starts the first week of April, when the 4,000 stock plants arrive. The small rooted cuttings are transplanted into one-gallon pots and will grow in the greenhouses until after July 4, when they have reached bushel-basket size.

At this time, the top few inches of the plant are cut off, yielding approximately 20 tender green shoots per plant.

These unrooted cuttings, sus-

Anthony Fry, part of the family-owned operation Frysville Farms, shows some of the plants that are for sale this season.

Culturing and training the tall poinsettia trees begins in February.

These unrooted cuttings, just taken from the stock plant, will spend three weeks in misting beds as they grow roots.

ceptible to bacteria and rot, must be kept in a sterile environment in a shaded house.

The cuttings, about three inches long, spend about three weeks in misting beds. In the beds they grow roots and are ready to be transplanted to various-sized containers by August.

They spend August, September, and October growing, but "they also go through cultural practices that define what kind of plant they will be," he said.

One example of a cultural practice is whether the plant is "pinched" or not. Taking off the top ½-1-inch of the stem causes "the lateral shoots to become prominent," he said.

A customer studying a branched poinsettia will see a small light-colored scab on the plant's stem. "That's where we pinched the 'heart' out of the shoot," he said.

The plants are pinched in mid-August, "which causes the remaining part of the plant to branch out. If the plants are not pinched, the axillary branches are not as prominent, and the plant grows into one strong shoot.

"Most of the crop is pinched, so we get multiple bracts (the colored leaves)." Pinching yields 3-6 bracts per plant. "The advantage is that it takes fewer stock plants to produce a multiple-bract plant."

"It's very time-specific," said Fry. "The pinch has to take place at the right time to make sure that the plant size and color come at a marketable time.

"It's not a crop that you want to put on the back burner, with nutrient management, water management, and insect management issues. We have to stay on top of everything or we'll have things that sneak up and affect the quality of the crop."

After the pinch in August, "September and October are when the plants put on the bulk of their growth," he said. By the end of November, the plants start to show color.

"The phenomena of the color change is a product of the shortening days," he said. However "any aberration from the sun's natural light will cause them not to color up. Shop lights, street lights, a TV — any light that you can read a newspaper by — is considered light pollution, and it doesn't take much. Even headlights on a busy highway may cause a week or so delay" in color change, said Fry.

"Once they have changed color, it's not a reversible mechanism. They won't change once they're in your house, for example." By mid-November the plants have, on average, 75 percent of their color.

Although red definitely tops the list of customers' favorites, hues of pinks, whites, marbles, and specked poinsettias are also for sale.

Customers tend to snap up the novelty colors for the year. This year, for example, they sold yellow/white "Lemon Snow" and the red-and-white "White Glitter." Next year Fry is hoping to add a deep "high-school jacket" burgundy to the color offering. "Whatever's new will sell well."

Fry reminds customers to think of the plants as a living organism that needs basic care.

"If they want to move the poinsettia to a table for a holiday meal, that's appropriate, but if they want that plant to last and stay healthy, it would do better in a window.

"Generally plants will forgive you with only one source of stress; however, if it is dry and has a low light situation," recovery to full health will be longer. "Add to that a drafty and cold situation," and the plant's health will be further compromised. "Plants will generally respond just fine, if they don't get overstressed," Fry said.

The family operation includes parents Morton and Beckie Fry, along with children Vincent, married to Caroline; M. Simon, married to Karen; Victoria, married to Bob Gosling; and Anthony, married to Denise.

The brothers are involved full-time on the operation, with occasional help from the spouses and their sister.

The business began in 1760, when the first Fry was established on land that once hosted a grist mill. After evolving through several industries, most recently a dairy, the land was put to use by Morton and Beckie as a nursery.

These stock plants will yield about 20 cuttings per plant. The cuttings grow into the plants the customer purchases.

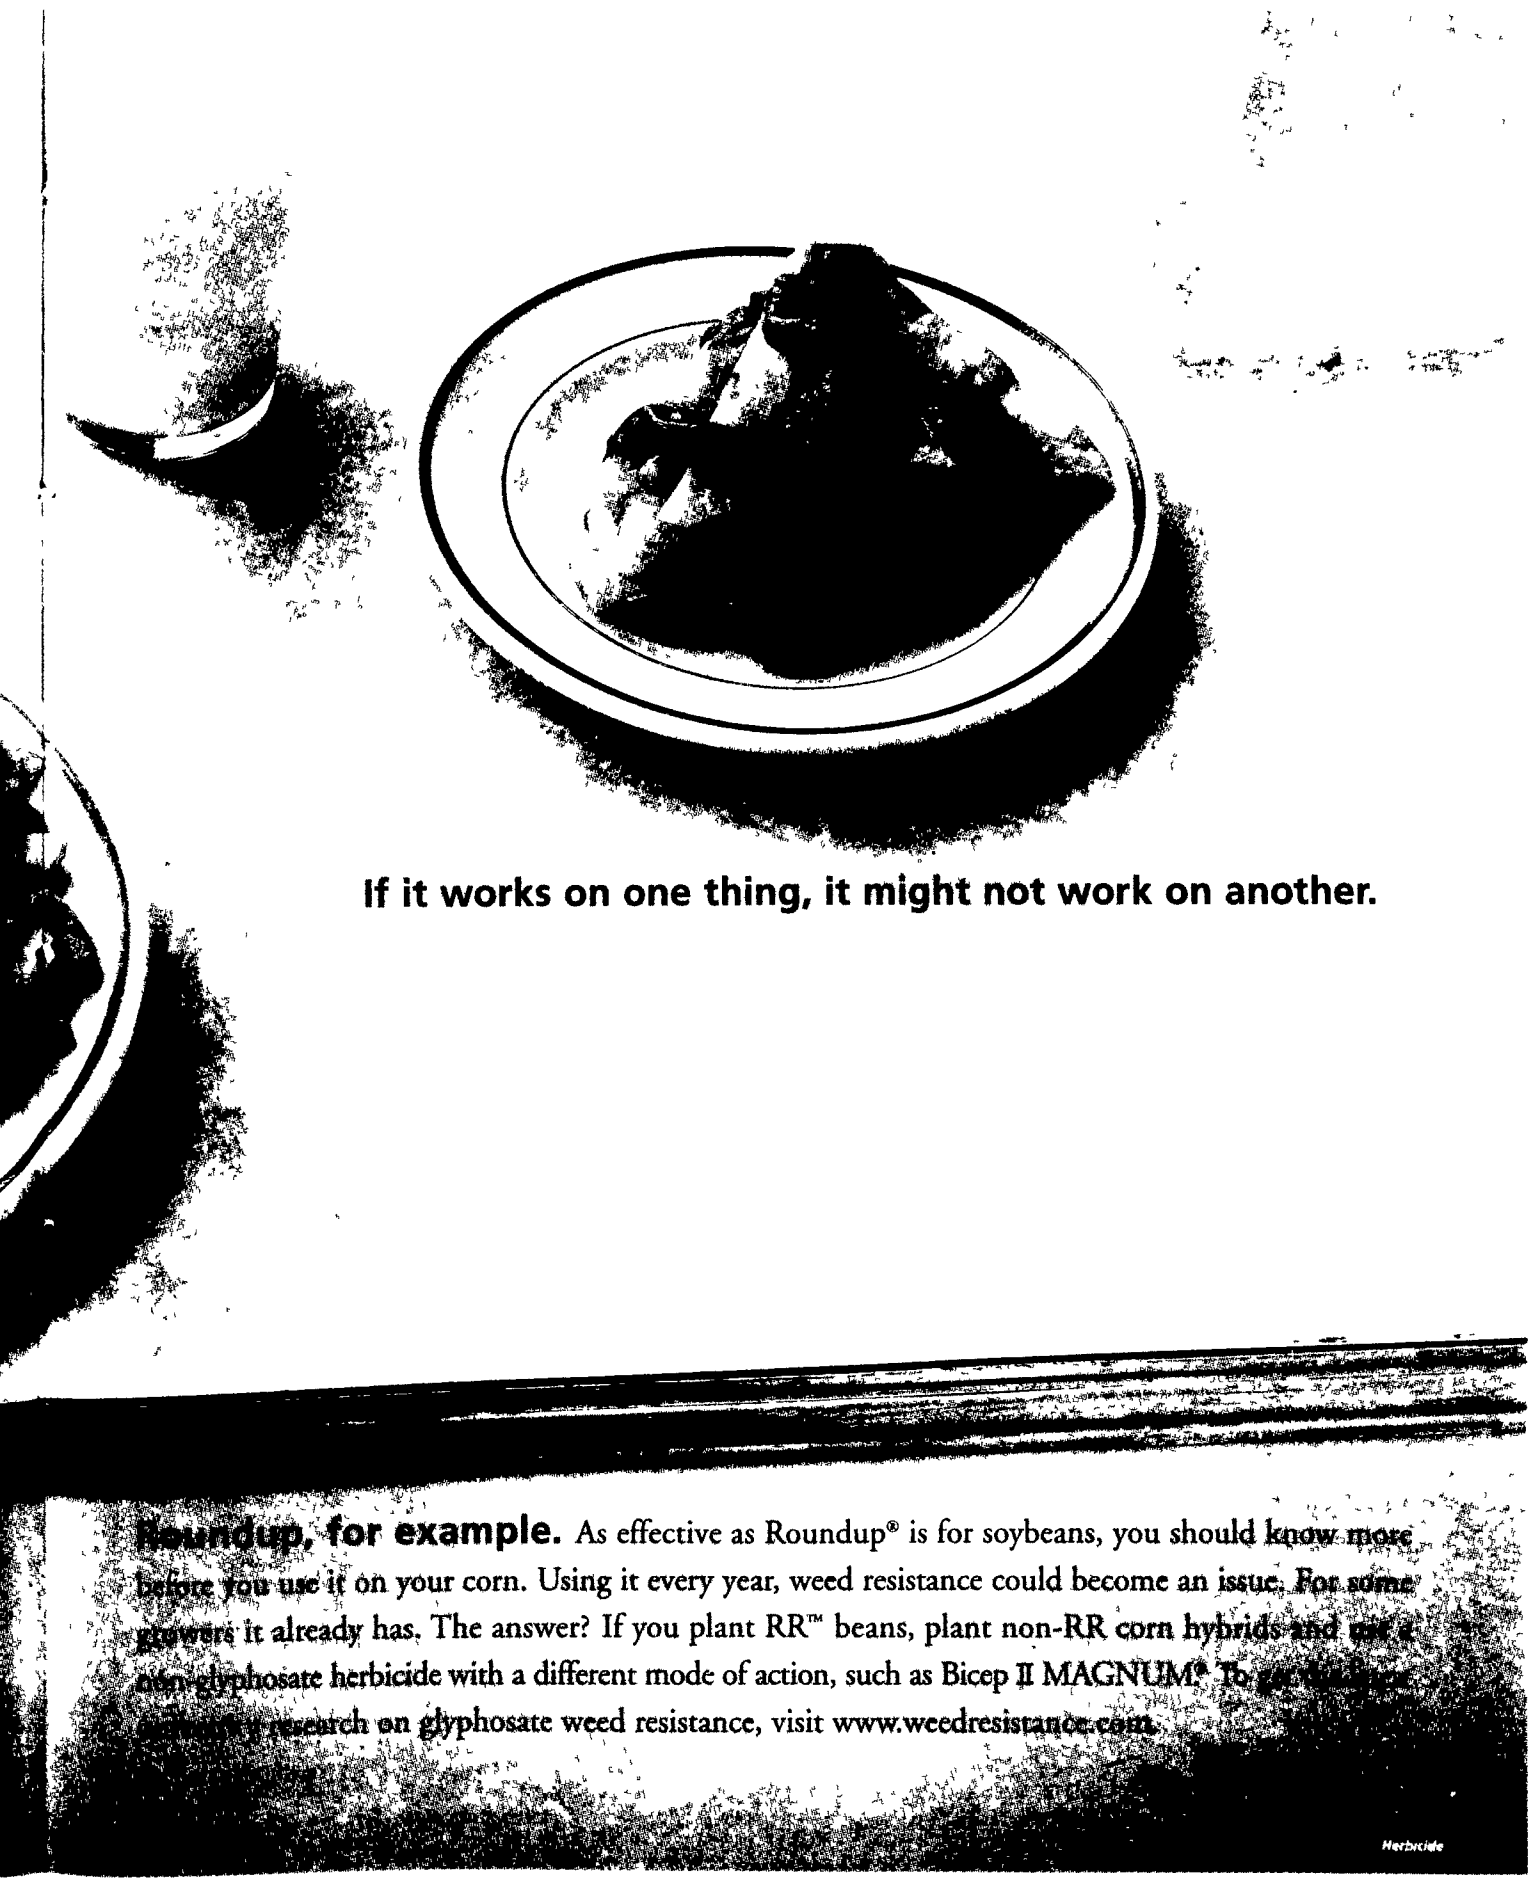
Fry attributes the continued success of the business to the staff. "They certainly have jumped in with their effort," he said.

"We owe a tremendous amount of gratitude to the work that our staff puts in, their input and assistance."

Twenty full-time employees form a core group of workers at the business.

Although there are a variety of colors to choose from, "without question, red is the top seller," according to Fry.

Mixing poinsettias and tropical foliage creates eye-catching displays.



If it works on one thing, it might not work on another.
Roundup, for example. As effective as Roundup® is for soybeans, you should know more before you use it on your corn. Using it every year, weed resistance could become an issue. For some growers it already has. The answer? If you plant RR™ beans, plant non-RR corn hybrids and use a non-glyphosate herbicide with a different mode of action, such as Bicep II MAGNUM.® To years and years and years," said Hayes.

"It's a great day for agriculture and a great day for Pennsylvania."

During the ceremonies, Kelly Powell Logan, secretary for the Department of General Services, presented the ceremonial key to Hayes for the work done by the commission with the legislature to make the construction a reality.

Construction was "something that should have been accomplished three or four decades ago," noted Hayes.

Groundbreaking on the expansion — which includes a renovated New Foyer, Farm Show offices, a spine system to direct pedestrian traffic, a new Equine Arena, horse barn, refurbished Banquet Hall (replacing the Family Living Exhibit Area), and a 359,000-square-foot Exhibit Hall — took place late in September last year. Construction finished this month.

"This historic expansion project now gives Pennsylvania more than 1 million square feet of space for agricultural events," Schweiker said. "It's also sure to attract more shows to the complex, in addition to the more than 200 shows that come here each year."

Said Schweiker, "We are here because of the determination, foresight, vision, and support of so many people."

Schweiker referred to "Coach Hayes" and the persistence and organizational skills of the Commission. Schweiker, a Republican, noted the ribbon-cutting comes at a time that is bittersweet, since this responsibility is one of many swan songs while he finishes his term of office, to be succeeded by Governor-Elect Ed Rendell, a Democrat.

About a thousand people attended the ribbon-cutting ceremonies in the new Exhibit Hall at the Farm Show Complex Tuesday morning.

The last time representing the Farm Show "makes it a little bit bitter, but sweet, that we can enjoy it together," Schweiker said.

Schweiker drew parallels between William Penn, the state's founder and farmer, the state's first chief executive. Schweiker himself, like Penn, hails from Bucks County. "I'm the second governor from Bucks County," he said.

Schweiker pointed out the determination and spirit and "grit

that defines Pennsylvania farm life and farmers." The additions and new construction provide "a compelling commercial that we send to the global marketplace so that good products and good relationships come to Pennsylvania."

The Farm Show Complex is a partner with the host city of Harrisburg with the economic well-being of the city in mind. The complex brings about $480 million in business to the city. "We constitute, to a great extent, the economic well-being of the midstate," he said.

Schweiker unveiled a ceremonial plaque during the morning ceremonies.

Schweiker was joined on the podium by Kelly Powell Logan, secretary for the Department of General Services; Merle Ryan, deputy secretary of public works; Jacqueline Pratt, Pennsylvania Fair Queen; Dave Bittner, state FFA president; and Dennis Grumbine, Farm Show director.

Afterward, Schweiker went on a sightseeing tour of the facility with members of the press and General Assembly. Along the way, he was greeted in the Equine Arena with various coach, horse, and livestock displays; to the new horse barn; and through the spine to various other locations, including the new Banquet Hall.

Along the way, Schweiker made many comments.

"There aren't enough superlatives," he said to the entourage about the beauty of the new construction. Schweiker turned to Rep. Art Hershey (R-13) and said, "What do you think, Art?"

Hershey replied, "Amazing."

A new expo hall, another large arena, a new livestock barn, a two-tier concourse that connects the new construction with the existing facility, and upgrades that have brought changes to the small arena, the previous family living center, and a 4-H and FFA dormitory are all part of the massive project that adds 360,000 square feet to what was an already a big complex. And for the first time, the Farm Show Complex will have air conditioned venues so it is a 21st century facility that will attract expositions in all seasons of the year.

The new expo hall of 175,000 square feet becomes the largest venue within the sprawling complex, providing additional space to accommodate nation-leading agricultural events and any array of other events.

The new large arena joins the existing large arena to establish the Farm Show Complex as a leader facility for cattle and equine expositions on the North American continent. The new large arena has a floor that measures approximately 300 feet long and 150 feet wide, with accompanying seating for 1,700 spectators.

The new livestock barn adds to the complement of current and new venues that make it possible for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to host some of the largest international livestock expositions to include the All-American Dairy Show, Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and the Pennsylvania National Horse Show.

The two-tier concourse will provide convenient passage for visitors and exhibitors from the new venues to those that already exist. The lower concourse will be for the movement of livestock, their handlers and vendors. The upper concourse will be for pedestrian traffic moving through the complex.

In addition to the construction of new components, the project has brought about modernization upgrades to current areas within the Farm Show Complex.

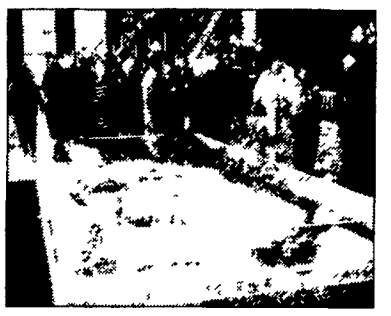
The former Family Living Center has been transformed into an exhibition and conference center that provides over 30,000 square feet of upgraded space that will accommodate modern shows and conventions. A new kitchen and seating area will make it possible for shows to have a new cafeteria and the opportunity to host dinners for up to 1,500 guests.

The current Small Arena has had a major facelift that replaced bleacher seats with individual arena seats. Also, the auction block as been rebuilt. And, a new feature is the construction of three "sky boxes" that will provide convenient and comfortable hospitality areas during the conduct of events in the Small Arena.

The former cafeteria has been transformed into a dormitory for 4-H and FFA members who are attending multiple-day activities at the Farm Show Complex and need overnight accommodations. When not used as a youth dormitory, this upgraded area can be used as a business center for exhibitors.

Resources also have been made available for a new roof to shelter and protect the current complex.

"Our vision was to build for the future and to provide Pennsylvania agricultural community with a world-class exposition complex that will make it possible to showcase the great work of our people and the leadership role they play here at home, across the nation and around the world," Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes said. "We have achieved our goals."



A display model of the complex greets visitors to the New Foyer at the Farm Show Complex.

The Department of General Services is responsible for public works projects sponsored by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and coordinated the project for the Department of Agriculture. Reynolds Construction did the design and construction work for the project.

Complete information about the construction and Farm Show schedule is scheduled next week, again in the Lancaster Farming Farm Show Showcase Section Jan. 4, and also in the Farm Show Issue Jan. 11.

for each land use. Did you realize that each poultry farmer feeds 11.9 people? A section on the amount of people we feed with the food we produce is included in the brochure.

The value of Lancaster County's farms compared to total Pennsylvania agriculture is highlighted on the brochure.

Consider distributing the Farm Facts to your neighbors to help build a greater understanding for what you do on your farm and its importance. You might consider taking the time to provide the brochure to your township officials to review the importance of agriculture to your township. You could also provide copies to your school district to offer as a resource for teachers to educate students about agriculture. These are just a few examples of uses for the Farm Facts. If you live outside Lancaster County, you might consider developing a similar brochure to use for agriculture education in your county.

FARM LABOR OPPORTUNITIES

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

Several weeks ago I wrote a column article on labor management. The purpose of this follow-up article is to suggest ways of making hired and family labor a more profitable investment in your farm business.

As the total traditional farm labor force continues to decrease, farm owners must develop more effective means of attracting and retaining agricultural employees. Solutions to most labor challenges require both economic and social adjustments. Suggested economic changes may require increased wages for labor, but equally effective social adjustments may not cost a dime.

Farmers must be willing and able to pay wages on a par with those of local industries, and not just the minimum industrial wage or those offered by other farmers. Farmers must develop highly efficient, profitable operations that can afford to pay industrial wages to their workers.

Why not provide prospective and regular employees with an itemized statement of wages and cash deductions for fringe benefits, housing and utility values, and other noncash benefits? Then encourage employees to compare your wage package with the competition. Farmers must give their employees a wage package competitive with industry. Remember that it's the spendable income left after food, shelter, and job deductions are made that is important to your worker.

If you're competitive here, you don't need to meet exactly industries' gross wage rate. You must, however, offer extra cash or other benefits to offset the value of additional fringe benefits provided by your competitors.

What about a cash bonus or other incentive plan for employees? Opinions are divided on these plans. Managers have tried them with both good and bad results. Farmers should be aware that a satisfactory plan is going to cost them more than ordinary wages, but it us justified by an even greater increase in income.

If incentive plans are new to you, discuss them with a farm management specialist or with a farmer who has a satisfactory plan in operation. Then decide if they will help your business. The additional returns, above the costs of a bonus plan, should exceed the net returns you would get from any alternative use of these same resources.

The job a worker accepts is determined by many things other than the cash value of his job package. The number of work hours during the week, whether the employee has time to himself (including a regular vacation plan), and other factors are considered by prospective employees. Pleasant physical working conditions, modern equipment to work with, and satisfactory relations with other employees and management are all plus factors. Job security is extremely important.

Important as money is, noncash social considerations involving the job and the surrounding community may finally determine which job a worker will select. Farm managers who have minimized their labor problems recognize that the social climate in which their employees and families live and work is equally, if not more, important than the wages paid.

Employers don't always realize the skills they expect from their employees. Farmers sometimes hire unskilled workers and expect immediate skilled performance without providing any training program. If you're going to hire untrained help, make sure they are properly instructed and adequately supervised during the training period. Don't expect satisfactory performance without training.

While agriculture must compete with industry for its labor supply, not all of this competition is economic. Fringe benefits, many of them socially oriented, must be equally attractive. When asked the secret of his successful labor management program, one Pennsylvania farmer said of his workers, "I give them good tools to work with. I show them what to do. I show them what we want to accomplish. I make sure we all have a good time doing it."

Farm owners must realize that good labor management requires social and economic adjustments.

NASS Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/

AG CENSUS UNDER WAY!

The Ag Census has been mailed to more than 91,000 addresses of potential growers across Pennsylvania and to more than 2.5 million addresses nationwide. Being a true "census," this project is only done once every five years.

You only have to produce $1,000 worth of agricultural products or keep only a few head of livestock or equine to count as a farm for Census purposes. This includes small, part-time, and hobby farms.

It is very important that Pennsylvania agriculture is properly measured by the 2002 U.S. Census of Agriculture. In the past, other states have had a more complete count and this can impact decisions about agriculture in Pennsylvania and across the Northeast.

'But I'm Not Farming'

You may not consider yourself to be a "farmer," but remember that agriculture goes beyond dairy, livestock, and field crops. It includes other items such as greenhouse and nursery, fruits, vegetables, aquaculture, bees, Christmas trees, maple syrup, llamas, bison, mink, deer, game birds, worms, etc.

If you think that you do not qualify as an agricultural operation, please call the toll-free number on the census form to ask if you should be counted.

'But I'm Retired'

You may also consider yourself "retired" from farming. However, it is typical that retired farmers still produce agricultural products, but on a smaller scale than before. It could easily exceed $1,000 of products that were sold or could have been sold which still qualifies you as a farm.

'But I Have Too Many Forms'

In Pennsylvania, more than 91,000 forms will be mailed in an effort to account for about 60,000 farms. We spent a lot of time to reduce the initial mailing list of potential farm from more than 120,000 names to more than 91,000 by removing as many duplicate names as we could find.

However, some of you will still get more than one Census form for the same operation. The front page of the census form gives instructions on how to deal with multiple forms for the same operation. Briefly, you will be asked to complete one form and return it along with the other duplicate forms.

I Didn't Get A Census Form

If you are involved with agriculture and do not receive a census by January 1, 2003, please call (888) 424-7828 to be sure you are counted. It's important for Pennsylvania that we count every farm of every size.

Do I Have To Send It Back?

Everyone who receives an Ag Census form needs to complete it and send it back by Feb. 3 to avoid further mailings. If you are not farming, please complete it and send it back or you will get additional mailings as well.

Since the Ag Census is required by law, we are required to contact you in person or more than the phone if we don't get your completed form by mail. I know your time is valuable and we really don't want to bother you at home. So, please complete and send the form back in a timely fashion.

Why Do A Census?

It is important the we provide the facts about agriculture for each county and across Pennsylvania so that rumors don't influence important decisions that affect growers.

Extension depends on county statistics from the Census for the delivery of services to growers of all sizes. They also rely on census data to support their research for the benefit of growers.

New growers, or those changing farm activities, can learn about agricultural production in their county to help decide what crops or livestock to raise.

Grower associations and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture use this information to define and promote Pennsylvania agriculture. Lenders need this information to make factual decisions about loans to growers. Suppliers and buyers use agricultural statistics to know where there is a need for their services or where to buy.

Ag statistics were important to the development and implementation of crop insurance and the 2002 Farm Bill to provide financial assistance to growers who choose to use these programs.

Finally, the Ag Census provides much county data that is only available once every five years. For some items in the Ag Census, this is the only time that farm demographics and minor commodities are measured such as goats, bison, llamas, many vegetables, nuts, some berries, pheasants, etc.

Why Do I Get Other Surveys, Too?

All of the largest farms and a few smaller operations will get sampled surveys in addition to the Ag Census. These generate state and national statistics of agricultural production for 2002. It is reasonable for you to ask, "Why should I do both?"

First, these usual year-end surveys lead to published reports in January through April 2003. The Ag Census contacts so many people that it takes a little more than a year before the Census can be properly processed and published in early 2004. Agriculture can't wait that long for 2002 statistics.

Second, this gives you more time to fill out the Ag Census form. The Census form is longer and contains questions about all agriculture on your operation. The year-end surveys are typically only one or two pages that deal only with one commodity or a group of related commodities.

The end of year surveys happening now through March include cattle, sheep, floriculture, bee and honey, and the quarterly Farm Labor survey.

Thank You

Remember, "Agriculture Counts" and we are counting on your response for an accurate Census. When you get the Ag Census form, please fill it out and return it right away to avoid additional taxpayer cost of further mailings.

Thank You!

graded to four-letter-word status by a majority of those in power. Both major political parties have bowed before the sacred cow of free trade and all recent administrations have circled the globe, shamelessly sacrificing American jobs and squandering taxpayer money in exchange for political favors.

The Bush administration now plans to pursue a free-trade agreement with Australia and New Zealand to reward them for supporting the administration in its effort against Iraq. Thousands of U.S. dairy farmers and cattle growers would be sacrificed in this deal. Evidently this is what Bush administration officials really meant when they declared that Trade Promotion Authority was essential in the war on terror.

What has the true cost been? Cheap toys, trinkets, parts and supplies become costly when they do not last, not to mention the frustration that they cause and the landfill space that they take up. Open borders have resulted in an illegal immigration nightmare, increased vulnerability to terrorism, and increased drug trafficking. The controversial dairy programs cost taxpayers billions of dollars in spite of the fact that domestic production has lagged behind consumption for years.

Even so, farm milk prices are at 1979 levels. Billions of consumer dollars have poured into China, making possible a huge military buildup in that country. In fact, when a U.S. spy plane was forced to land on Chinese soil and was dismantled by the Chinese, the U.S. simply looked on in pathetic impotence because we have become dependant on the Chinese for a great host of consumer goods.

Chapter 11 of NAFTA makes a mockery of national sovereignty, democratic self-determination, and due process. The World Trade Organization operates in secret and is controlled by people who have no public accountability, yet our leaders bow before them in unholy reverence.

As unsettling as this is, perhaps nothing hits closer to home than the impact of globalism on agriculture. In 1973, the "Agricultural Trade and the Proposed Round of Multilateral Negotiations" outlined a plan to remove tariffs and subsidies from agricultural products. The goal was to force farmers into greater efficiency through global agricultural trade. The anticipated benefit would be lower food cost, more money for consumer goods, and increased economic growth.

Farmers around the world are reeling from the results of these trade policies which have resulted in depressed farm prices, while consumers pay more and more for lower quality food. The GAO report, "Food Safety-Federal Efforts to Ensure the Safety of Imported Foods are Inconsistent and Unreliable," estimated the cost of food born illnesses to be between $6.6 and $37 billion dollars annually. Millions of tons of food pour into the U.S. every year. Much of this is produced under low or nonexistent sanitary standards or contaminated with pesticides or herbicides that have long since been banned in the U.S. or that were never legal here. Very little is inspected, and even the inspections that do take place are often inadequate and ineffective.

How can we put a price tag on the loss of rural infrastructure? A once prosperous and robust farm economy has become weak and anemic, kept on life support by costly government subsidies, which only repay a fraction of what is stolen by consolidated agribusiness facilitated by foolish and damaging trade policy. Good hard working and knowledgeable farmers are being lost. Farm families are in despair and stressed to the max. A whole generation of future farmers has no incentive to pursue a career in production agriculture.

All this in spite of nearly one billion people around the world that go to bed hungry every night.

Elected officials have failed the American people miserably by allowing this foolishness to go on without even the slightest protest. Land grant universities have contributed to the farmers' demise by withholding the truth and by offering bad advice.

We are sliding down a slippery slope. American agriculture is in a state of collapse. If America wishes to preserve an adequate supply of domestically produced food, we must act quickly and decisively to free ourselves from the snare of global entanglement. The family farm system of agriculture that has served our nation so well must be preserved. The cost of failing to do so will be staggering indeed.

Editor:

Consumers are paying more for dairy products and dairy farmers' net income is down 50 percent, yet certain dairy processors are earning record profits. This would lead one to wonder, "Just who is getting milked?"

Dean Foods, the largest fluid milk processor in the country, recently announced record earnings for 2002. The processor attributed the increased earnings to reduced raw milk costs, the synergy of mergers, and the success of its specialty lines.

Meanwhile, at least two ice cream makers are admittedly skimping on the amount of ice cream in a half-gallon container and scooping up profits from the sales of new 1.75-quart containers, for which they are charging the same price as the conventional two-quart containers. Processors and retailers cite rising ingredient costs for their actions. The opposite is true.

The costs for butterfat and nonfat solids, the main dairy ingredients in ice cream, have dropped by one-third since January 2002. Prices paid to farmers for their milk have dropped more than 50 cents a gallon in some parts of the country since that time. Nationally, U.S. dairy farmers will receive $4 billion less in milk receipts this year than last.

At the same time, the administration is proposing additional changes in dairy programs that would cost dairy farmers as much as $1 billion in lost income. Additionally, the U.S. is seeking to open borders even further to cheap dairy substitutes from Australia and New Zealand, further flooding the U.S. market.

Consequently, dairy farmers are receiving the lowest prices for their products since 1979 and are continuing to go out of business at a record pace. Unfortunately, economic projections predict that dairy prices paid to farmers have little, if any, chance of recovery in the coming months.

Manufacturers, on the other hand, are paying only 50 cents for the dairy ingredients used in a one-half gallon of ice cream. The retail price of that same ice cream is about $5. And milk prices paid by consumers have held steady or increased. Recent surveys have shown that certain dairy processors and supermarket chains may be earning more than $1 a gallon in profits.

Dairy farmers are not against processors and retailers having a successful year. However, a competitive market situation would reward dairy producers and consumers as well.

America's dairy farmers and consumers currently appear not to be gaining any visible benefit in the marketplace. The lack of market competition that exists in the dairy industry allows the few largest companies to dominate the market not through efficiency, but through monopoly. A competitive market would benefit both consumers and dairy producers.

National Farmers Union is urging Congress to hold hearings to determine whether lack of market competition within the dairy industry is resulting in price gouging that is harming both consumers and producers. In years past, consumers benefited when cereal manufacturers responded to congressional questions by announcing they would lower cereal prices.

Similar action is now needed in the dairy industry to stop the unjust milking of American consumers and those who produce their food.

Editor:

I'm a subscriber and a farmer, and really don't understand what you folks must be thinking when you run an editorial like "Who Calls the Shots" in the Dec. 14 issue.

Our township supervisors, being composed entirely of farmers and rural neighbors, passed a resolution against factory corporate farming. An absentee investor of a local factory hog farm threatened to sue the township if the resolution didn't exclude him. That hog farm ruins the quality of life for farm neighbors for miles around. None are "suburbanites, activists, or environmentalists," just ordinary longtime rural people who can't stand the smell of large, absentee-owned factory hog farms!

To me, it's a triumph for democracy that the Pennsylvania House has refused to pass Senate Bill 1413, an amendment to the so-called "Right to Farm" Bill.

Now, I understand and sympathize with farmers who are just trying to make a living. And I support those farmers whose livelihood is threatened when suburbanites move into farm areas and complain.

But my concern is more about how large corporations tell the state, the public, and the lawmakers (whose pockets they line with cash) what laws to pass or reject. Plus, most of us have known for years that the Farm Bureau has never represented the interests of small family farms (take a look at "Amber Waves of Gain" published online by Defenders of Wildlife, www.Defenders.org, under "publications" for a history of how the Farm Bureau has actively worked to put family farms out of business!).

If Lancaster Farming wants the support of family farmers, it needs to listen to them. Its elected township supervisors, local farm organizations, and farmers themselves who are directly affected by factory and corporate farms. Township governments are the cornerstone of democracy in Pennsylvania. And whether they're trying to stop urban toxic sludge from being spread or the building of corporate hog factories, they need to maintain their power and effectiveness. We need to support them, not the interests of large-scale corporate ag which, in the end, hurts family farms and rural America. If you want a readership and a farm population in the future, support them and their ability to decide about matters such as factory farming.

The Farm Bureau and corporate agribusiness mouthpieces like PennAg should be relegated to the backwaters of influence in our region. And your periodical should not be echoing their views.

Thank you.

Lancaster Farmland Trust Receives Top Rating

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Planning to make a contribution to a nonprofit organization by the end of 2002? Is the recipient organization using the money in the most effective way, ensuring that your contribution makes the greatest impact on the cause you care about?

In the wake of 9/11 related nonprofit scandals, there is a growing interest in charity watchdog groups to objectively rate the operation of nonprofit organizations.

Charity Navigator, a Web-based watchdog group recently gave local Lancaster Farmland Trust, a nonprofit organization that helps Lancaster County farmers preserve their land, a four-star rating for organizational efficiency on their Website. This is the highest rating possible.

"The board of directors at the Oxford Foundation are concerned that the foundation's contributions produce the maximum outcome per dollar. To assist our decision on which nonprofit organizations to fund, we routinely turn to tools like Charity Navigator to help us evaluate the effectiveness of the organization's programs," said Phil Calhoun, executive director of The Oxford Foundation. "It gives us a great deal of peace of mind to invest in programs like Lancaster Farmland Trust that use a business model that makes them highly effective."

Charity Navigator, founded in 2001, is a free, Web-based service accessed at www.charitynavigator.org. The group uses publicly available 990 forms (the form nonprofit organizations and foundations use to report to the IRS) to analyze and evaluate the charity's overall financial health. The four-star designation that Lancaster Farmland Trust receives means that the organization exceeds industr, standards and outperforms most charities in its cause. The site also compares organizations with other regional and national organizations in related fields. The site evaluates 1,700 organizations, 33 percent of which receive a four-star rating.

There are two basic criteria that the group employs — the short-term spending practices and the long-term sustainability of the organization. To determine the short-term practices, Charity Navigator looks at an organization's fundraising efficiency, fundraising expenses, program expenses, and administrative expenses to provide potential donors with a picture of how efficiently the organization operates on a day-to day basis. Lancaster Farmland Trust has a fundraising efficiency of $.01 spent to raise each dollar. Fundraising and administration account for 5.5 percent of the Trust's expenses, with the balance being spent on programs.

Long-term sustainability is evaluated by looking at an organization's average annual growth of operating revenue, average annual growth or programs and services, and working capital ratio. Lancaster Farmland Trust scored high overall on long-term sustainability.

'Our board members are very pleased with this rating," said Ted Bowers, Lancaster Farmland Trust board chair. "During the past year, the board has taken a hard look at the day-to-day operations of the Trust. We are pleased that our interest in using our donor's money for maximum return has been recognized by Charity Navigator."

Lancaster Farmland Trust, in its 14th year, has preserved 154 farms covering 9,771 acres.

Pork Expo To Feature Animal Handling/Welfare Conference

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Dr. Temple Grandin, expert on animal handling and facilities designer, will be the keynote speaker at the combined Animal Handling Conference and Keystone Pork Expo and Trade Show, Tuesday, Feb. 4, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. here at the Holiday Inn.

Sponsored by PennAg Industries Association and the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, this conference is planned to provide information on animal handling and emerging animal welfare issues in the dairy, poultry, and swine industries.

Keynote speaker, Grandin designs livestock handling facilities and is assistant professor of animal science at Colorado State University. She teaches courses on the livestock industry, livestock handling, and animal welfare.

Grandin has appeared on the 20/20, 48 hours, and Larry King Live TV shows, and has been featured in many livestock and meat trade publications as well as People Magazine, New York Times, Forbes, and U.S. News & World Report. She has authored more than 300 articles in scientific journals and livestock periodicals on animal handling, welfare, and facility design.

Producers and industry leaders from the dairy, poultry, beef, and swine sectors of agriculture are invited to attend. Space is limited, so early registration is recommended. Preregistration is required for the conference. Registration deadline is Jan. 21, 2003.

Northeast Uniform Price For November

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during November 2002 is $12.31 per hundredweight ($1.06 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for November is $2.47 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD ($2.47) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($9.84) equals the SUP ($12.31)

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk are from Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston).

The Class prices for milk pooled in November are as follows: Class I, $13.85 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $11.26; Class III, $9.84; and Class IV, $10.58. Comparable prices for November 2001 were: Class I, $19.01; Class II, 12.78; Class III, $11.31; and Class IV, $11.97.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.971 billion pounds. Class I utilization was 47.2 percent of producer milk receipts.

Live Equipment Demos A First At The Farm Show

Seminars To Cover A Variety Of Agricultural Innovations

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For the first time ever, Farm Show guests will be able to witness farm equipment in action during the event.

"Animated demonstrations" of new innovative machinery will take place on the floor of the Large Arena between 10 a.m and 2:45 p.m. Monday and Tuesday Jan. 13-14 during Farmer Days at the new Farm Show. That means the equipment will be doing actual tasks for visitors to see, according to Don Hoover of Binkley and Hurst Bros. Inc., Lititz.

"People will be able to sit in there, out of the winter's cold, and watch the demonstrations," Hoover said.

Equipment in motion will include a new Case IH 12-row pivoting planter, Fendt tractors from AgCo, John Deere's new infinitely variable speed transmission, and a lift and turn angle hitch provided by Hoober Inc.

Binkley and Hurst Bros. will feature a compact track loader and a large skid steer loader for handling silage, as well as a tele-boom loader moving large bales of hay.

Hoober's "lift and rotate hitch" can transport a 20-foot Great Plains grain drill and a Case IH 8-row corn planter at about half the working width, said Tom Yohe of Hoober's.

The demonstrations will offer a one-of-a-kind experience to Farm Show guests.

"It's a unique opportunity to actually show something working," Yohe said. "You just don't have that opportunity at other venues.

"We're excited about it. It will be interesting to see how it is received."

After each working demonstration takes place, guests will have time to walk out on the floor for a close-up look at the machinery and have questions answered by company representatives.

A variety of informational seminars for farmers are also offered Monday through Wednesday, Jan 13-15.

Representatives from Blue Seal Feeds, Iron Solutions, NSIA Inc., and Sollenberger Silo will share their expertise in 45-minute sessions conducted in the Small Room between 10 a.m and 2:45 p.m.

AgCo, Hoober Inc., John Deere, and New Holland are to present 45-minute seminars in the Large Room during the same time period. Experts will provide guidance on a variety of new technologies.

See the schedule on this page to choose sessions that will help you make the most of your Farm Show visit!

Farm Link Offers Training, Loans To New Farmers

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — To tackle the continuing declinc in new farm entry demonstrated by the precipitous 58 percent drop in new farmers under age 35 from 1982 to 1997, Pennsylvania Farm Link will offer a comprehensive approach to getting into farming.

Training in business planning and marketing skills, a 12-week, 36-hour course will begin in February in the Manheim area. During the course, producers will explore niche markets, distribution channels, production options, management controls, business structure, cash-flow management, and financing. The focus of the course is on the individual producer's interest, resources, and needs. Participants will walk through developing a business plan and come out of the course with a unique plan to develop their farm business and/or apply for a loan.

In addition, new farmers can participate in a 2,000-hour apprentice program certified by both U.S. and Pa. Labor and Industry. Apprentices of legal working age are paired with a farm business employer in their chosen specialty. The program includes 2,000 hours of both practical on-farm work experience and 144 hours of theoretical class instruction related to the selected enterprise. Participating farmer businesses must comply with the Fair Labor Standards Act. Wage rates progress as apprentices successfully complete their instruction. Apprentice may complete the program on their own family's farm.

After completing the business training and the apprentice program, participants are eligible for living loans through Heifer International. For example, upon completion of the business planning and marketing course and the Beginning Farmer Dairy apprenticeship, participants may be eligible for a living loan, i.e., Pennsylvania Farm Link and Heifer will provide funds to purchase up to 10 bred heifers. The participant is obligated to pass on the gift, in approximately three years, when another new farmers will be eligible to secure funds for a living loan. These loans can include all kinds of dairy and livestock as well as seeds or plants.

All kinds of productions practices and farming enterprises can participate. To learn more about this new program, please contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077.

Farmer/Educators Sought

BURLINGTON, Vt. — The Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program is seeking nominations for three new openings for its Sustainable Farmer Educator program. This program offers grant support for time and travel to articulate and experienced farmers who want to share their knowledge with others.

This program was launched in 2001 with the appointment of three producers — for the past year, they have been speaking at conferences, meetings, workshops, and on-farm demonstrations while continuing their farming operations.

In expanding this program to include three more farmers, Northeast SARE seeks applications in the following areas: adding value and direct marketing; diversified agronomic crops such as grains, beans, forages, and potatoes; and grazing management for dairy cows in the southern part of the region, specifically Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware.

Appointments normally run one year, and the SARE award can be used to pay for travel expenses, time, telephone, e-mail, and other costs directly associated with educating farmers, extension educators, and other agricultural professionals in sustainable agriculture techniques.

The application process is competitive, and preference is given to successful farmers with previous experience presenting at workshops or in other educational settings. Applications can be downloaded from the Northeast SARE Website at www.uvm.edu/(tilde)nesare/; a printed version can be requested by calling (802) 656-0471. The application deadline is Jan. 6, 2003. Selections will be made in February.

Herd Health Focus Of LanChester Pork Council Meeting

speaker at a LanChester Pork Council meeting Tuesday.

Rodibaugh, DVM, Swine Health Services, Frankfort, Ind., was one of several speakers at the 44th annual meeting and pork production forum. The meeting drew approximately 80 producers and industry representatives to Yoder's Restaurant.

By definition, nonproductive days (NPD) are any days that a sow or gilt is not gestating or lactating. Reducing the NPD improves herd efficiency and decreases costs per pig produced on such factors as feed, facility, genetics, and labor.

The components of NPD are:

- Preservice intervals (entry to service, gilts) (wean to service, sows).
- Postservice intervals (days from service until detected nonpregnant).
- Removal intervals (cull, death); (wean to removal); (Service to removal); and (entry to removal).

Although establishing a benchmark is difficult, targets would be (the data is a little optimistic, said Rodibaugh):

Gilts:

- Entry to first service: 10-20 days.
- Entry to removal (no service): less than three days.
- First service to conception: less than three days.
- First service to removal: less than three days.

These numbers are a little higher for sows.

Total NPD numbers are ideally between 30-50. The interval from service until detected as open is a leading predictor of NPD, and "that's what we probably work on more than anything," said Rodibaugh.

"Putting NPD knowledge into practice is not rocket science, and you already know them (good management routines). It's just a matter of knowing the tools."

Estrus detection, real time ultrasound at three days, and gestation management, such as nutrition, watching sow conditions, checking for physical problems, and stress are part of shortening the NPD number.

Numerically, the value on one NPD might have on an operation is about .05 pigs per female per year. "NPD is an indicator of female throughput, which has economic consequences," he said.

Dr. Nate Winkelman, swine consultant and owner of Swine Services Unlimited, Inc., discussed not only the diagnostics of ileitis but also the treatment, control, and prevention of the disease.

"The disease has been around for a while," said Winkelman. It was first described in scientific journals in 1931, but it was not until 1993 that the cause of ileitis — Lawsonia intracellularis, — was first cultured.

In 2001 the first vaccine went on the market.

The disease also occurs in rats, hamsters, horses, rabbits, deer, fox, ferrets, emus, ostriches, and monkeys but not humans, he said. It has worldwide distribution.

In addition, it is considered the most common cause of diarrhea by U.S. veterinarians.

According to Winkelman, outbreaks cost producers $3.50-$7 per pig in lost performance and mortality. The disease peaks at 18-28 days with a lot of diarrhea from the animal, but it may have a long incubation period. The animals, he said, may not test positive for two to six weeks.

In its chronic form, found in animals 10-20 weeks old, the pigs have a dramatic weight variation as they go off feed and have soft-to-watery stool. It is transmitted fecal-to-oral contact, but mainly through pig-to-pig contact, although boots and vehicles may also spread the bacteria. It can live in the pit for 13 days.

Its acute forms, in young adults 4-12 months, may cause sudden death with no apparent clinical sings. The pigs may be pale and anemic looking, plus have black or bloody feces.

A variety of tests run on tissue cultures from the small intestine can show whether the animals had ileitis. Besides postmortem examinations, tests can be run on pea-sized fecal samples.

The samples must be taken directly from the rectum (as opposed to the floor) and kept on ice before taken to the lab within 24 hours.

As for treatment and control, there are four feed-grade antibiotics approved by FDA, and several pending approval. Feed additives are much better to use as a prevention and control measures rather than as treatment, he said. "You have to get ahead of the disease."

In addition, there are several water medication options. Injectable antibiotics have worked well in trials, he said. Feed antibiotics may not be as effective if the animal has ileises, since they eat less when they have the disease.

"You want to pulse them with feed antibiotics before you see clinical signs," he said. Also, too many stressors can overwhelm a feed-grade antibiotic.

"If you've got an outbreak, you need to be using water medication — that's what is going to stop that outbreak." Pulse the antibiotics ahead of time, since the disease is harder to control with increased severity.

"Be aggressive with effective injectable and water medication," he said.

Disinfectants that kill the bacteria are ammonium chloride or an iodine-based disinfectant, though most importantly the facility needs to be cleaned with a hot water wash to get rid of the fecal matter, said Winkelman.

In fact, prevention includes designating a clean and dirty zone in the barn for boots or barn clothes. Change boots between barns, and clean off boots before dipping into a footbath, he said.

Follow up with appropriate feed-grade antibiotics.

National Pork Board spokesman Nicole Boettger highlighted pork checkoff efforts.

Success in the industry, she said, has been achieved as producers evolved to meet consumer demand, since there is 31 percent less fat on hogs than 20 years ago. She also noted that the "Pork. The other white meat" campaign, launched in 1987, is the fifth most recognized tagline in marketing history.

The organization also helped the industry make strides in exporting. America has moved from being a importer to a large-scale exporter of pork. Also, the pork board's efforts have helped to increase pork in foodservice 17 percent in 2001.

Other efforts by the board include rebranding — giving a new look to — the pork checkoff. In addition the board offers a Producer Service Center — 1-800-456-PORK — for questions, education, and market reports.

The afternoon consisted of PQA Level 3 recertification by Chet Hughes, Lancaster County livestock extension agent. Hughes highlighted animal handling procedures that are part of the Trucker Quality Assurance Program (TQA).

Hughes wanted to enhance the PQA program by bringing to pork producers information presented to livestock haulers "so that you can understand what you need to do before the hogs get on the truck, and what happens until they get to the plant," he said.

One example of proper animal handling procedure is the spare use of electric prods, which can cause stress which may lead to a heart attack and perhaps death.

Although Hughes did not say that the prods should never be used, "learn to minimize use and find better ways to handle hogs without the abusive use of electric prods," he said.

As for loading ramps, they should generally be 20-25 percent slope or less.

While the hogs are being loaded, "it's not a race to get the pigs on the truck — it's not a contest," Hughes said.

"Give them time to find their way, and it's a little smoother." Move the animals in smaller groups (3-5 animals) for easier handling and less stress.

The goal, he reminded the audience, is to "get the pigs to the packing plant not all banged up and bruised and stressed."

Do not load downer pigs that cannot stand; rather, put them on a sled to move to a pen, Hughes said.

Also, "make sure that your load-out crew understands how to load pigs, and what you're trying to accomplish," said Hughes, recommending to "put the dog away," and not hang a jacket on the loading chute.

Producers should also inspect the loading chutes for anything that would bruise or tear the hogs.

Opening the barn curtains 15 minutes prior to loading allows the hogs to get acclimated to the outside temperature.

"This animal handling issue is one that is in the front burner right now. It's something we have to think about.

"It's to your advantage that you get the hogs there safely — it's important to have a good relationship with your truck driver."

keeping services prices down, Nunes said.

If the organization had continued to rely on the reserve fund, the monies would have been depleted by 2008, according to Nunes's figures.

Income in 2002 included a $296,000 increase in registration payments, as well as revenues from blood-typing services, eartags, classifications, and a Michigan TB project.

Holstein USA has nearly reached its goal of signing up 400 members by the end of the year for its new Holstein Complete, a comprehensive service that includes registration, classification, production records, genetic reports, pedigrees, and sire selection in one package.

This year, Holstein USA also accelerated its push to have its national farm animal identification and records (National FAIR) system recognized and implemented as the national standard for quickly tracing livestock in the event of an animal health crisis.

Jodi Luttrop has joined the staff to manage the animal identification program, first developed by Holstein USA four years ago. She spoke about its progress at the Tuesday meeting.

Luttrop said Holstein USA is at work creating alliances with other livestock industry leaders and federal officials, with the goal of having National FAIR recognized by USDA as the animal identification standard for all species of livestock across the country.

"If an animal disease crisis hit our country tomorrow, you would be shut down," Luttrop said. The value of a unified system would be that any suspect animal could be tracked in a matter of hours, she pointed out, rather than the month or more it could take now.

Ensuring food safety is another major goal of the national ID system.

"A lot of other countries are ahead of us in animal ID," Luttrop said. "Consumers want to know where their food comes from."

FAIR uses both visible and radio-frequency identification eartags to identify livestock. Animal IDs, similar to human social security numbers, are entered into a central database. Registered users are able to access the database.

Not only would the system allow rapid tracing when implemented nationally, Luttrop said it can also serve as an excellent management tool for dairy and other livestock producers. She reported some dairy farmers already using the tags to help with computerized recordkeeping on their farm.

Even though Holstein USA developed FAIR, other companies could vie for the technology and court the government for rights to distribute and market it, according to Dave Paddon, Holstein USA regional representative from New York.

"There will be competitors," Paddon said.

While the USDA has provided grant money to Holstein USA for developing the ID system, Paddon said is a challenge getting it accepted as the standard for the various species of livestock. Half a dozen computers programmers are working to make it compatible across the board.

Vice president Nunes said Holstein USA is seeking counsel to protect their work in developing National FAIR while the struggle for USDA recognition continues.

"We're two years ahead of everybody else," Nunes said. "But as this thing drags on, that will change."

Among Luttrop's efforts to promote National FAIR, she produced a 12-minute video on it, including farmer testimonies on how FAIR has worked on their operation. FAIR was also instrumental this year in successfully tracing turberculosis in Michigan dairy herds.

"What we've done in Michigan is biggest feather in our cap," Luttrop said.

Small Dairies Can Succeed Without Increasing Milk Sales

Bill Henning
Cornell University

Over the past few years, statements have been put forth in the dairy industry with words to this effect: 1) No business can survive without increasing sales each year; and 2) Growth should be at least 5 to 15 percent annually.

It is said that this increase in sales is necessary to cope with volatile market fluctuations and inflation. This presents a quandary for the dairy producers who are not interested in pushing their cows to higher production and/or milking more cows. How are they to maintain a viable business in light of these admonitions without jeopardizing their personal goals?

Let's first address the potential outcomes if every dairy producer were to follow the increased sales advice.

If all dairy producers were to increase milk output by an average of 10 percent annually there would be over 2.5 times as much milk on the market at the end of 10 years. It is doubtful that demand will grow by that magnitude. Given our present knowledge, this would result in a dramatic reduction in the farm gate milk price.

If one were to buy into the advice of increasing milk sales, the most likely approach would be to increase cow numbers. At the end of ten years, a 100-cow dairy would be milking 259 cows. There are still many dairies that don't even want to milk 100 cows let alone 259.

Given the limitations of land and markets, some other suggestions might be more appropriate for the long term viability of smaller farms.

Diversifying enterprises will do more to counter market fluctuations than increasing one's intensity in specialized production. If diversifying can be accomplished on the farm, this might be a good alternative. If resources do not allow onfarm diversification consider diversifying off the farm. There are places to invest off the farm that can involve no increase in labor and even little or no management.

A perusal of Cornell's Dairy Farm Business Summaries easily reveals numerous places on the typical dairy farm that present opportunities to improve net return in an amount equal to or exceeding inflation. The increased return results through changes that increase efficiencies in crop and/or animal production. Assistance in identifying these opportunities can be available through consultants, agribusiness professionals, or Cooperative Extension. This does not necessarily require increased milk sales.

Beyond these two suggestions, Dr. Eddy LaDue of Cornell's Department of Applied Economics and Management recently authored 10 keys to financial success on small farms in the Oct. 10, 2002 issue of Hoard's Dairyman. In summary his 10 keys are:

1. Control machinery cost. This includes initial investment, maintenance, and operation.
2. Be entrepreneurial. Search for better markets and find better ways of getting things done.
3. Employ modern techniques.
4. Employ labor efficiently.
5. Shop for lower-cost inputs.
6. Use commercial lenders, not dealer credit unless unique circumstances warrant otherwise.
7. Keep records.
8. Change to improve. Take advantage of new technologies that fit your goals.
9. Maintain family support. Amidst all the work and projects, keep family goals in mind.
10. Enjoy farming.

Dr. LaDue's number 10 is particularly notable. For well over a century, there have been a few groups of people who have well established track records of operating small, family-based farms. These farms have been quite successful, while abstaining from any government subsidies. Very often, these people don't even claim economics as their primary reason for farming.

If you would like to learn more about these farmers and how they manage to stay both small and profitable, come to the Low Input Sustainable Farming Conference on Saturday, Jan. 11 in Jordan Hall at the Geneva Experiment Station. For a conference registration packet call Bill Henning at (315) 536-5123. Deadline for registration is Dec. 20.

Miller Elected To AJHA

KANSAS CITY, Mo — For the second time, a Pennsylvania Junior Hereford breeder has been elected to a seat on the American Junior Hereford Association board of directors.

Emilie Miller, the 17-year-old daughter of Mike and Sheila Miller, Tulpehocken Township, won a three-year term on this national board, following in the footsteps of Curt Stockdale, Armstrong County, who held a director's seat in the mid-1990s while a student at Kansas State University.

Miller joins three other young Hereford breeders in winning seats on the 12-member board. The other successful candidates are young men who hail from North Dakota, Alabama, and New Mexico. Miller is not the only young woman on the board, however. The junior organization's president is a young woman from Missouri, and there are three additional female directors from Texas, Georgia, and Kansas.

Elections are nothing new to Miller, who serves as president of her state Junior Hereford Association, vice president of her senior class at Tulpehocken High School, vice president of her school's National Honor Society and the Tulpehocken FFA Chapter, and treasurer of the high school student council. She also shares the duties of president for the Berks County 4-H Beef Club.

Emilie's campaign for national office began earlier this summer when she attended the Junior National Hereford Expo in Sioux Falls, S.D. Interviews, hard work, and determination helped Emilie make an impression on youths from across the country during a record-breaking heat wave that tested the attitudes of cattle and exhibitors. Miller kept her cool during the week-long event that included interview sessions with current board members, adults, and other juniors who fired industry-related questions at the candidates.

"This experience helped prepare me for the final campaign at our 2002 National Junior Hereford Association PRIDE Convention, held in Kansas City, Mo., last month," Miller said. "The convention brings young Hereford enthusiasts from across the United States together for a weekend full of motivational speakers, contests, workshops, and fun activities, designed to help us get to know each other better."

Miller was one of eight candidates for the National Junior Hereford Association Board. Each candidate was required to speak to the entire voting delegation on several occasions, responding to questions and sharing their goals if elected.

"I wasn't sure what to expect when I got to Kansas City," said Miller, who admitted she was more nervous when she was waiting outside the conference room for her turn to speak than when she was in front of the crowd. "I let everyone know how much I enjoy raising and showing Hereford cattle, and that I want more young people to have this opportunity. I have met so many people during the seven junior national shows I have attended since 1995. I only missed one during that time, when it was held in Montana, but I participated anyway and was honored to win first-place in the poster contest in the senior division."

Miller has won numerous Hereford honors over the years, most recently winning first-place in the photo contest at PRIDE and earlier this summer receiving the Junior Golden Bull Award, an award given to an active member of the National Junior Hereford Association who excels in participation in local, state, and national events and activities.

"It was a great honor to receive this award from the NJHA and the American Hereford Women," said Miller. The national Junior Golden Bull Award is given to youth members in grades 9 through 12, with one individual in each grade being honored from the entire junior membership in the United States and Canada.

Some of the duties Miller will be expected to carry out in her role as national director include promoting the Hereford breed, motivating other junior breeders, and assisting the senior association in conducting numerous shows and events across the country. The experience Miller gained in Sioux Falls when she helped organize a 1,000-head Hereford show, getting exhibitors to the show ring on time and making sure junior activities ran smoothly, will benefit her as she fulfills her lifelong dream of serving on the board. Her duties started immediately as she assisted at the American Royal show in Kansas City in October, and as she prepares to travel to Denver, Colo. for the National Western Stock Show in January.

"I'll be selling my Farm Show lamb and then boarding a plane to get to the national show," said Miller. "Unfortunately, because of the change in scheduling for the Hereford Show at the 2003 Farm Show that has been stretched over two weekends, I'll have to leave my cattle at home this year. It's disappointing since I was looking forward to experiencing the new exhibition hall and all the improvements that Secretary Sam Hayes and Farm Show Director Dennis Grumbine have achieved."

Miller won't have much time to feel sad, however, since her national duties will keep her traveling across the country to national shows, field days, and conferences. This summer the Junior Hereford Expo will be in Indianapolis, Ind. She will be exhibiting a bred and owned heifer and steer at this event. Miller owns 35 head of registered Herefords under her own "ECM" prefix, keeping them on her parents' 150-acre farm in western Berks County.

"I am excited that my race for national office has put me in the driver's seat in helping to determine the future of the Hereford breed for my generation. It is a dream come true."

Four Grazing Conferences Planned In New York State

COBLESKILL, N.Y. — Sponsored by the Cornell Small Farms Programs, a series of livestock grazing conferences will be conducted around New York State during the first week in February 2003.

The conferences will feature Jim Van Der Pol and Janet McNally as keynote speakers as well as programs designed by local farmers. They will take place on February 5 in Cobleskill; February 6 in Dryden; February 7 in Newark; and February 8 in Madrid.

Jim Van Der Pol has a diversified livestock farm in Minnesota, and direct markets his pasture raised chickens, beef, and pork. In addition, he writes the "Conversations with the Land" column in the magazine Graze.

Janet McNally is also from Minnesota where she raises sheep. Janet tried farming with several types of animals before settling on sheep as the best for her resources. Both Jim and Janet will explain how they use grazing, and will share how their operations have evolved to where they are now.

In addition to the two keynote speakers, each conference location will have a part of the program that is designed by local farmers. These conferences are offered by the South Central New York Cornell Cooperatives Extension Dairy Team, in cooperation with the Cornell Small Farms Program, the New York State Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative, the New York Pasture Association, and SUNY Cobleskill. For more information call Dan Demaine, CCE grazing specialist, at (607) 753 5213.

Lanco Co-op Leader Discusses Milk Marketing Challenges

Co-ops Not Able To Secure Gov't Payments For Farmers

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Lanco Dairy Farm Cooperative will continue its efforts to secure the best milk prices for its members in spite of adverse market conditions and tough competition from larger milk handlers, according to leaders of the farmer-run co-op.

Lanco was first started in 1998 as a division of Allied Federated Cooperatives, Inc. based in Canton, N.Y. Lanco now has about 800 producer members, the majority of them in the eastern and southern parts of Pennsylvania.

Dave Elliott, director of member services at Allied, led informational meetings this week for Lanco members in several locations, including Lancaster County where a large portion of Lanco members are Amish producers with relatively small herds.

Elliott spoke about the conditions that created this year's historic slump in milk prices, and predicted modest increases in 2003.

"Our problems marketing milk began on September 11, 2001," he told a group of about 40 at Daniel's Farm Store here Tuesday evening.

A drop in demand for milk products after the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington resulted in an 11 percent decrease in milk sales, according to Elliott. This slack demand, plus a 3 percent domestic increase in milk production, the problem of milk protein concentrate (MPC) and other imports, and continued consolidation within the milk-handling business resulted in 2002 being "perhaps the worst year" in dairy history.

"The biggest problem we are having is the consolidation of the industry," he said. In Elliott's view, this has resulted in large cooperatives that tend to look after the interests of processors over those of their farmer members.

"Are you working for the farmer or working for the processor?" Elliott asked in reference to some of the nation's largest milk cooperatives. "You can't have it both ways. In order for there to be a winner, there has to be a loser. A co-op can't do both."

Some of these competing co-ops are also involved in importing milk from Canada and importing MPCs from abroad, adding to the plight of domestic producers, Elliott pointed out.

He urged dairy farmers to refrain from doing business with milk handling companies or manufacturers that don't take care of U.S. milk producers first. He also encouraged them to help spread the word to consumers about inferior milk products on the market.

"Processed cheese made with MPCs isn't cheese as far I'm concerned," he said.

Elliott cited American free-trade policy as another culprit that allows inexpensive, substandard milk products to be imported into the U.S.

"We're not going to change the world," Elliott said. "But don't support organizations that don't look after farmers."

Pennsylvania dairy farmers also face a drop in over-order premiums for Class 1 milk in 2003 — from $1.65 to $1.25 per hundredweight by April. The Milk Marketing Board said it made this recent decision in order to prevent processors from looking elsewhere for cheaper milk.

Even with all the challenges, Elliott said that increased demand and other factors should boost milk markets in the new year. Citing economist predictions that milk prices will range from about $13 to $16 in 2003, Elliott said farmers can probably expect an average of about $1.50 per hundredweight above what they received this year.

"We are definitely going to see a better price," he said.

Elliott updated members on milk income loss payments that became available this fall under the new Farm Bill.

For farmers who may be waiting for their co-ops to act as agents in securing government payments, Elliott had this to say: "It's not going to happen anytime soon."

According to Elliott, by the time the federal government approves such an arrangement, the program might be over.

"They're already saying they are running out of money," he said. "I have this sneaking feeling that this program is going to disappear before it's supposed to."

Elliott favors the implementation of a dairy compact such as the one which expired last year in New England states. Such a compact would set a floor price that processors are required to pay for milk and would not involve tax dollars.

"We don't need a government check — we need a stable pricing situation," Elliott said. "The money needs to come from the processors."

To create a stable milk price environment, the government also needs to curb the flow of milk products coming into this country and stop basing the milk business on a global pricing system, according to Elliott.

"Our milk should be priced according to U.S. (supply and demand)," Elliott said. "You can't do business with your neighbors if you have money and they don't. Everybody in the world wants to trade here because our consumers have money."

Members at the Leola meeting also heard updates from board member Ken Marshall of New York and Jerry McCleary, head field inspector.

Strength In Fed Cattle Prices To Continue Next Year

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Economic Research Service (ERS) of the USDA publishes a monthly Livestock, Dairy & Poultry Outlook and this month's report presents a favorable report for the cattle industry.

The following report was prepared for the November issue before the advance of fed cattle prices into into the $70s. It is especially relevant on the assessment of the conditions in the cattle and beef complex.

Fed steer prices have rallied $5 since early October, reaching the upper $60s per cwt in early November as poor feeding conditions slowed marketings. With weekly beef production running above year-earlier, the market strength indicates relatively good product movement in export and domestic channels Prices strengthened in early November as muddy feedlot conditions resulted in weight loss and reduced marketings.

In October, slaughter weights and numbers were both above year-earlier levels. The average federally inspected slaughter weights for steers bounced between 840 and 844 pounds in mid-October as the muddy conditions affected weight gain and resulted in some weight loss.

Improved weather conditions will result in compensatory gains and improved marketings. Average heifer weights, which tend to peak later than for steers, also advanced steadily until conditions resulted in a downturn in late October.

A year ago, mild winter conditions contributed to unusually good weight gains particularly in comparison to the poor feeding conditions in 20001/01. For the quarter, the commercial cattle slaughter weight is forecast to average 766 pounds, about 8 pounds above a year earlier. Poor feeding conditions and additional cow slaughter would result in lower weights.

If slaughter weights have indeed peaked, beef production will moderate in the coming weeks as slaughter numbers also decline seasonally. Although beef production in the October-December quarter is expected to be about 1 percent over a year earlier, prices for fed cattle are expected to average in the upper $60s per cwt as packers compete for declining numbers of cattle.

In recent months, fed cattle marketings have been brisk relative to inventory levels. On October 1, cattle-on-feed inventory (7-States) was down 5 percent from a year earlier. Feeder cattle supplies outside feedlots on October 1 were about unchanged from a year earlier. However, placements are expected to remain below year-earlier levels, as wheat-grazing prospects in the High Plains winter wheat areas are the best in several years. Improved weather conditions will result in more light cattle moved to pasture.

The upturn in prices will likely continue next year as steer and heifer slaughter drops each quarter relative to a year earlier, with the largest year-to-year declines occurring in the second half.

Cow slaughter is in expected to drop sharply in 2003 as forage conditions improve. Assuming normal winter feeding conditions, gains in average slaughter weight should slow from this years record pace, but will rise modestly as the proportion of cows in the slaughter mix declines.

For the year, beef production is forecast down 5 percent in 2003. Prospects for reduced beef supplies and higher cattle prices next year depend to a larger extent in normal forage and grazing conditions in spring and summer, which would encourage producers to retain animals for breeding rather than feeding them for slaughter.

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The tradition Christmas dinner seems to be the preferred by most Lancaster Farming readers. But they want recipes for buffet dinners and luncheons. They want great-tasting recipes that look "holidayish" but don't require hours in the kitchen.

One of the best sources for these recipes is Alletta Schadler, who is well known as Lebanon County Extension's home economist. Although officially retired, Letie — as she is most often called — returned for the extension's annual holiday program where she presented lavish recipes guaranteed to "wow" your guests and your taste buds.

Admire these photos of some of the dishes she prepared for the audience. Examine the recipes and decide which ones to serve to your guests. You won't be disappointed.

CAJUN GRILLED TENDERLOIN WITH MUSTARD-HORSERADISH CREAM

1 (3½ pound) beef tenderloin
¼ cup hot sauce
¼ cup teriyaki sauce
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoons Creole/Cajun seasoning
Vegetable cooking spray

Place the tenderloin in a large heavy-duty zip-top plastic bag. Combine hot sauce, teriyaki, Worcestershire and seasoning. Pour over tenderloin and seal bag. Marinate in refrigerator for 1½ hours, turning occasionally.

Remove tenderloin from bag and discard marinade.

Prepare hot fire in grill on one side only, leaving other side empty. Spray rack with vegetable spray. Place tenderloin on rack over unlit side. Cover grill and grill for 30 to 40 minutes or until meat thermometer inserted into thickest part of tenderloin registers 145 degrees for rare or 160 degrees for medium. Let stand at least 10 minutes before slicing thin. The tenderloin could also "rest" under a tent of foil on a platter for up to an hour before slicing and serving. This could also be served as an entree.

Serve on small cocktail buns with Mustard-Horseradish Cream. 24 appetizer servings.

MUSTARD-HORSERADISH CREAM

½ cup prepared horseradish
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Place horseradish in fine wire mesh strainer and press with back of spoon against strainer to squeeze out juice. Discard juice. Set horseradish aside.

Beat whipping cream at high speed with an electric mixer until soft peaks form. Fold in horseradish, mustard, and lemon juice. Cover and chill thoroughly.

HONEY-MUSTARD PORK TENDERLOIN WITH MINIATURE BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

¾ cup honey
6 tablespoons light brown sugar
6 tablespoons cider vinegar
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1½ teaspoon paprika
4 (¾ to 1 pound) pork tenderloins
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
Miniature Buttermilk Biscuits

Stir together first five ingredients until well blended.

Place pork in a greased 15x10-inch jellyroll pan; sprinkle evenly with salt and pepper. Pour honey mixture over the pork evenly.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes or until a meat thermometer inserted into the thickest portion of pork reads 160 degrees, basting occasionally. Remove the pork to a wire rack, and let stand 10 minutes before slicing.

Pour drippings into 1 3-quart saucepan and cook, stirring often, over medium high heat until slightly reduced and thickened for sauce. Serve pork sliced with split Miniature Buttermilk Biscuits and reduced sauce. Makes about 20 appetizer servings.

MINIATURE BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

1 cup butter or margarine (do not use reduced fat type)
4 cups self-rising flour
1½ cups buttermilk
¼ cup melted butter or margarine

Cut butter into flour with a pastry blender or fork until crumbly; add buttermilk, stirring until dry ingredients are moistened.

Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface; knead 3 to 5 times.

Pat a roll dough to ½-inch thickness, cut with a 2-inch round cutter. Place dough on lightly greased baking sheet. Re-roll excess dough and proceed as directed.

Bake at 425 degrees for 10 to 13 minutes or until golden. Brush with ¼ cup melted butter. Makes about 5 dozen.

2 teaspoon Old Bay Seasoning
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
⅛ teaspoon red pepper
⅛ teaspoon hot sauce
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 large egg
1 pound fresh lump crabmeat, drained
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Melt butter in large skillet over medium-high heat. Add pimento, celery, and bell pepper; saute 3½ minutes or until tender. Remove from heat; stir in parsley and next four ingredients.

Stir together mayonnaise and egg in a bowl until blended; stir in pimento mixture. Fold in crabmeat. Spoon into lightly greased 1-quart baking dish.

Bake at 375 for 15 minutes. Serve with assorted quality crackers. Serves about 10.

BLUE CHEESE AND BACON PUFFS

1½ cups water
½ cup butter
1½ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
⅛ teaspoon ground red pepper
6 large eggs
8 ounces crumbled blue cheese
8 bacon slices, cooked and crumbled
4 green onions, finely chopped

Bring water and butter to a boil in a heavy saucepan over medium heat. Add flour and next three ingredients; cook, beating with a wooden spoon, until mixture leaves sides of a pan and forms a smooth ball of dough. Remove from the heat, and cook five minutes.

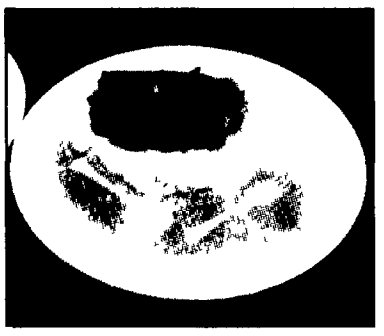
Add eggs, one at a time, beating well with spoon after each addition. Beat in cheese, bacon and chopped green onion.

Drop dough by rounded teaspoons two inches apart onto lightly greased baking sheets.

Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden. (Puffs will be moist in center.) Serve puffs warm or at room temperature.

Note: Puffs may be frozen up to three months. Thaw in refrigerator or overnight, and reheat at 350 degrees for five minutes or until thoroughly heated. Serve

(Turn to Page B6)

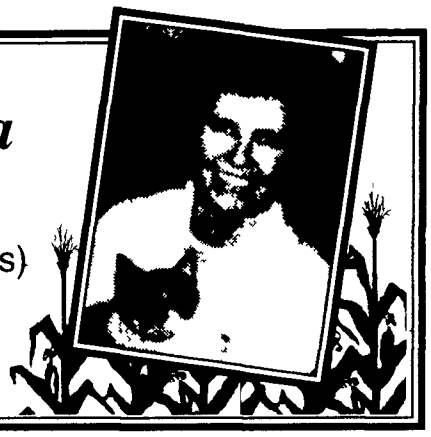


Add a bit of pizzazz when serving dessert. Pastry and Culinary Arts students at Lebanon County Career and Technology Center are taught to always serve food on white plates, which serves as an artist's canvas. In this photo, a child's spoon and fork were placed in position. A mixture of cocoa and sugar was sifted on top to leave the imprint when the spoon and fork were removed and served.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp



A tall, lovely tree graces the living room of our old farmhouse.

Beneath the reflection of a luminous gold star at the top hang shiny ornaments of red and blue, green and silver. Golden tinsel shimmers in the air currents stirred by a wintery wind outside our slightly-drafty old home. Piles of gaily-wrapped gifts bedecked with pouffy bows are heaped beneath.

White icicle lights highlight the house's porch and exterior, outlining windows lit with flickering candlelight reflecting off the snow. Greens loop around the deck, interspersed with red-bowed wreaths and a twinkling outside Christmas tree.

Yeah, right. In my dreams.

Year after year, I oogle those lovely layouts of holiday havens in home-garden type magazines, designed by professional decorators and fueled, obviously, by unlimited time and budgets. Also apparently homes with no kids, no dogs, no farmers tracking endless mushy, muddy footprints through the kitchen.

And each year I am convinced anew that, while such layouts are beautiful for dreaming, holidays are about family. And family here is kids, farmers, dogs, and, of course, cows. All of which, except for the occasional near-frozen, newborn calf brought to thaw at the basement woodstove, are part of our household.

So once again we celebrate with our "eclectic" holiday decorations, some old, some new, some experimental, many handcrafted gifts, but all with particular personal meaning.

Our living tree of several years, a Norfolk Island pine purchased nearly a decade ago as a potted plant in a post-Christmas sale, finally outgrew our ability to house it. It has moved to the higher calling in the higher-ceilinged bedroom of our grandsons, where the kids can decorate it, undecorate it, and redecorate it to their hearts content.

Replacing it are two smaller "trees," living topiaries of perennial English ivy I've trained for two years into tree-shaped forms. One has tiny white light (and cow ornaments if I can ever remember to go retrieve them from the attic, while the other is simply wrapped with gold tinsel and topped with an angel crafted by a friend.

An assortment of gift, scented candles top the television in the living room, adding a cozy glow and fragrance to the house on cold, dark nights. Also handy during our recent ice-storm power outage. Candles absolutely fascinate our grandkids. We have to pick up and smell the various scents of each one whenever they stop by, though I never light them with little folks in the house.

But the eclectic seasonal display piece d'resistance is our manger scene, a mixed melange of miniature pieces accumulated over the years. Mary, Joseph and the Baby Jesus in the manger are colored plastic statuettes from one set. Our Wise Men are carved from wood, as are shepherds, some whimsical little sheep and a donkey missing part of one ear, from another set. Joining the group over time is a plastic black and white cow from a long-ago toy farm set and a rusty-red horse, maybe from the same place.

Completing the manger, finally, is a rustic stable to go with the pieces, one of ideal size and shape that I stumbled across a few months ago at a "dollar" store. The price was affordable.

The whole point of this display is that small hands can pick up, play with and rearrange the pieces, offering an opportunity to talk about what it means. This also means that our Baby Jesus may turn up on the coffee table or a wooden Wise Man could be keeping company with the Teddy bears on the rocking chair.

When I recently lamented the appropriateness of this mismatched, mish-mosh of a manger scene, our daughter gently reminded me that the original manger scene certainly did not "match." And, she added if I wanted something resembling originality, there should probably be some chickens scratching around in the background and at least a cat or two curled up in a corner of the stable.

So we'll celebrate with our mismatched eclectic tributes of the season and memories and love they represent. Which, after all, is what this holiday season is all about.

Merry Christmas — and we wish you a season filled with hope, love, joy and peace!

Buffet Bonanza: Keeping Food Safe!

Buffets are a great way to celebrate special occasions. What could be more tempting than a buffet table laden with a mouth-watering feast? But when foods are left out at room temperature for long periods of time, buffets can provide an inviting environment for bacteria - and a food-borne illness may result. Here's how to protect the food and your guests.

Size Matters! If you're planning a buffet at home and are not sure how quickly the food will be eaten, keep buffet portions small. Prepare a number of small platters and dishes ahead of time. Prior to serving, store the cold back-up dishes in the refrigerator and keep the hot dishes in the oven, set at 200 to 250 F. This way, your late-arriving guests can enjoy the same appetizing arrangements as the early arrivals.

Take Temperatures! Cooked, hot foods should be kept at 140 F or warmer. Use a food thermometer to check. Serve or keep food hot in chafing dishes, slow cookers, and warming trays. Be aware that some warmers only hold food at 110 to 120 F, so make sure your warmer has the capability to hold foods at 140 F or warmer.

Chill Out! Cold foods should be kept at 40 F or colder. Keep cold foods refrigerated until serving time. If food is going to stay out on the buffet table longer than two hours, place plates of cold food on ice to retain the chill.

Keep it Fresh! It can be unsafe to add new food to a serving dish that already contains food. Many people's hands may have touched the food, which has also been sitting at room temperature for awhile. Instead, replace empty platters with freshly filled ones.

Watch the Clock! Remember the two-hour rule: Don't leave perishable food out at room temperature on a buffet table for more than two hours unless you're keeping it hot or cold. If the buffet is held in a place where the temperature is above 90 F, the safe-holding time is reduced to one hour.

If you have any questions or concerns about food safety, contact your local county extension office or one of the following:

Experts Share Holiday Tips

How do the pros do it? Create a fabulous holiday menu, an incredible table setting, a memorable meal and enjoy it?

Here's how four entertaining experts do it (and you can, too!).

• Remember Your Immediate Family — Alicia Ross and Beverly Mills, co-authors of Desperation Entertaining (Workman, 2002), say they have realized that the time between Thanksgiving and Christmas can be the most "desperate" time of year, given all of the extra activities added to an already hectic schedule. They have learned that it's necessary to make a concerted effort to have some special time, not only with friends and extended family, but also with their immediate families. Otherwise, the holidays would pass and they would miss connecting with those who live under the same roof!

So they've created a new tradition a "fancy dinner for four" (they both have a husband and two children). Selecting this menu is just as important as what to fix for the big feast with aunts and uncles, cousins and grandparents.

They choose a menu that's a bit fancy, a bit out of the ordinary for family meals like a succulent steak topped with something special like blue crab or a rich sauce. But, the meal must be easy, just like their book (where all recipes can be made in 20 minutes).

• Enjoy Yourself — Another bit of sage advice comes from B. Smith, the host of B. Smith With Style, a nationally syndicated television series. "I always host the kind of party I like going to," Smith says.

No matter what type of party you plan, the objectives remain the same — to make your guests feel welcome with warm hospitality and good food. And most important, your dinner or party should not feel "planned" no matter how much planning went into it.

"It's not just the guests who should be enjoying themselves; you should be having a good time, too," Smith adds.

• Celebrate with Special Foods —

For Betty Rosbottom, cookbook author and regular contributor to Bon Apptit, the holidays would not be complete without celebrations.

"Nothing gives me more pleasure than taking extra time to cook and then share special dishes with others. The food for these occasions must be or, both in presentation and flavor. Rosbottom says, "Stately standing rib roasts and beef tenderloin, garnished with spicy condiments and fresh vegetables, are among her favorite choices for holiday main courses."

And one more thing, she always offers — several rich and indulgent desserts since no one counts calories during the holidays!

• Savor Your Own Celebration — Now, what about your own holiday celebrations? Big or small? Buffet or sit-down? Casual or fancy? That's all up to you, but the bottom line is, be comfortable with whatever you decide enjoy it!

A roast is one of the easiest and most impressive special meal choices for the holidays. Just put it on a rack in the oven and cook! No turning, no basting, no peeking!

Versatile beef roasts can be prepared simply with salt and pepper as the seasoning or more elaborately (but easy!) as in this Horseradish-Crusted Beef Ribeye Roast. Just spread prepared horseradish over a ribeye roast and then coat it with a three-ingredient mixture of cracker crumbs, grated Parmesan cheese and thyme. Not only will it be delicious, but it will make a stunning presentation for the holiday table or buffet.

Horseradish-Crusted Beef Ribeye Roast makes a delicious centerpiece for your holiday celebration.

And for an easy make-ahead accompaniment that will add a very special touch to the menu, try Savory Mushroom Bread Pudding, accented with mushrooms, rosemary and Gruyre cheese. Assemble it the night before, refrigerate, then bake for an hour before serving time.

Finish the menu with a favorite salad and fresh vegetable.

For the finale, choose from a tempting trifle, decadent chocolate cake or cranberry sorbet with holiday cookies.

And, most of all, enjoy the food, the occasion and the holiday season!

HORSERADISH-CRUSTED BEEF RIBEYE ROAST

1 well-trimmed beef ribeye roast, small end (6 to 8 pounds)
½cup prepared horseradish
37-40 butter-flavored crackers
½cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons dried thyme leaves, crushed
Savory Mushroom Bread Pudding (recipe follows):

Heat oven to 350F. Place roast, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Spread horseradish evenly over all surfaces of beef roast.

Place crackers in food processor or blender container. Cover; process until fine crumbs form (about 1-¼ cups). Combine cracker crumbs, cheese and thyme in small bowl. Press crumb mixture evenly onto roast over horseradish, generously covering all surfaces.

Insert ovenproof meat thermometer in roast so tip is centered in thickest part of beef, not resting in fat. Roast in 350F oven 2 to 2-¼ hours for medium rare; 2-½ to 2-¾ hours for medium doneness.

Remove roast when meat thermometer registers 135F for medium rare; 150F for medium. Transfer roast to carving board; tent loosely with aluminum foil. Let stand 15 to 20 minutes. (Temperature will continue to rise about 10F to reach 145F for medium rare; 160F for medium.) Carve roast into slices. Serve with Savory Bread Pudding.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Nutrition information per serving (⅛ of recipe): 540 calories; 57 g protein; 11 g carbohydrate; 28 g fat; 388 mg sodium; 158 mg cholesterol; 9.2 mg niacin; 0.8 mg vitamin B6; 6.4 mcg vitamin B12; 6.2 mg iron; 13.6 mg zinc.

NUTTY CHOCOLATE PUFFS

Filling:

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese (6 ounce), regular or reduced fat type
2 tablespoons sugar
⅔ cup chocolate-hazelnut spread (such as Nutella)
¼ cup heavy cream
½ cup chopped toasted hazelnuts or pecans

Puffs:

1 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
1 cup water
½ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs

For Filling: In a medium mixing bowl beat together cream cheese and 2 tablespoons sugar. Gradually beat in chocolate hazelnut spread and heavy cream. Stir in nuts. Cover surface with plastic wrap and chill. Can be made a day or two ahead.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease a very large baking sheet or two smaller sheets. Set aside.

For Puffs: Stir together 2 tablespoons sugar, flour and cocoa; set aside. In a medium saucepan combine water, salt and butter. Bring to boiling. Add flour mixture all at once, stirring vigorously. Cook and stir the mixture until the dough forms a ball that doesn't separate. Remove from heat and cool for 10 minutes. Add eggs one at a time, beating well with a wooden spoon until smooth after each addition.

Drop by rounded teaspoons (the kind you eat with) into 24 mounds at least one inch apart on the prepared baking sheet. (A very small ice cream/muffin scoop works well. Bake for 25 minutes. Cut a slit into each puff to let steam out. Puffs should be firm and dry. Transfer to wire rack to cool. When you are done baking, turn off oven and return the puffs to oven with the door cracked to make sure the puffs are crisp. To hold puffs for later serving a day or two later, put into large zipper bag or tight covered container.

To serve: cut the tops of the puffs and remove any soft dough from inside. Spoon cream cheese mixture into the puffs. They can be filled up to two hours before serving. Chill until serving time. Makes about 24 small puffs (figure 2 puffs per serving).

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Sunday is officially the first day of winter. However, we had our first real snow more than two weeks ago. Our son, busy as he is, opened our driveway and those of two other persons also.

There is a steep hill in the meadow, where our house is located, and the neighborhood children sled there. They no longer use just sleds but have an assortment of toys to sled on. They can go almost into the woods at the bottom of the hill.

Long ago, on this very hill, I broke my glasses as we went to the bottom with two people on one sled and we hit a bare spot and the sled stopped abruptly and we slid off. I don't remember that my parents punished me when we told them what had happened.

Cold weather makes extra work for the farmer. Some mornings there are water bowls to thaw and when you burn wood it takes more than one wheelbarrow load. But, since we have lots of woodland, it is wise to use the fallen trees for fuel.

Each week I like to look at the prices that are paid for antiques that are listed in our Sunday newspaper. It is interesting to see what a butterprint or a coffee grinder brings at a public sale. I realize that you really do not know the condition of a quilt or a braided rug, but even so I enjoy looking at the prices.

One day I asked a man how old he thought my desk was and without a moment's pause, he said "1830." Now that is exactly what the bottom of a drawer says and I'll quote, "Wm. Bradley bought this desk of Wm. Wilson, May 17, 1830. Cost 3 pounds, 6 shillings, 2½ pence."

Now is the time to make healthy choices so you have the energy and enthusiasm you need for the holidays and so you can do all the things you want in the new year. There's no need to raise your stress level by trying to lose weight or make dramatic changes in your lifestyle. Just take a few simple steps to feel better this year and indulge without the typical holiday bulge.

Be Realistic...Plan ahead for holiday eating, meetings and greetings. If you are over hungry, it's natural to overeat when you are confronted with the temptations of over-loaded holiday tables. Eat something light, but filling, an hour or so before holiday events.

Fuel yourself with a piece of string cheese, a small muffin, or half a peanut butter and jelly sandwich before you go out-that way you'll be able to make more sensible choices.

Be Adventurous...Expand your holiday treat selection with a variety of wonderful fruits. Try a persimmon or pomegranate and live on the "wild side." Serve a tangy mango salsa with dinner.

Be Flexible...Stop fretting about your favorite holiday foods, the big party at work, or any one-day filled with holiday celebrations. The key is learning to balance what you eat and your physical activity over the course of several days. Balance a heavy-duty holiday buffet by going light at breakfast and lunch. Take an invigorating walk before or after the party to help clear your head and digest your meal.

Be Sensible...Enjoy all holiday foods and beverages, just don't overdo it. When you look at the wide array of seasonal options, make conscious choices.

Relax, take a deep breath and remind yourself that you don't have to eat everything right now. The same kinds of goodies will be around next year and the year after that! Pay attention to what you have chosen and are eating so you can really enjoy it.

Eat slow and savor the taste sensations.

Be Active...This is really the key and the bottom line is simple Get moving and keep moving. In the hustle and bustle of the season, time for physical activity is often the first thing to go.

Enjoy holiday fitness by keeping up with your regular routine or join in some active winter sports like skiing, skating or sledding. Just do it!

Be Thankful...Take time every day to be thankful for the many blessings in your life. Large or small, the simple things in life are those that truly represent the spirit of the season.

How To Remove Nail Polish

Nail polish stains are best treated by your dry cleaner. If the garment is washable and you wish to treat the stain, try using the following procedure.

For best results, treat the stain as soon as possible using a nail polish remover. Note that using a nail polish remover may create another stain. Before using, test for fabric damage and colorfastness by applying a few drops to an unexposed area. Let stand for five minutes. If the color or fabric is damaged, don't use the product.

This applies especially to nail polish removers that contain acetone, which may permanently damage acetate or acetate blend fabrics. Place the stained area over several layers of white paper towels. Apply a few drops of nail polish remover to the stain. Let it soak into the stain, then gently blot with a paper towel; do not rub. Allow the nail polish remover to evaporate from the fabric. After testing for colorfastness, use a laundry pre-spotter to treat any remaining stains.

ANSWER — May A. Eyster, Hummelstown, requested a recipe for old-fashioned raisin-filled cookies. Thanks to Cheryl Miller, York, for sending one.

Monkey Pies
(Raisin-Filled Cookies)

Filling:

2 cups sugar
8 tablespoons cornstarch
4 cups water
¾ box raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a large saucepan, mix together sugar and cornstarch, stir in water until well blended and add raisins. Bring to a boil and cook until thick, stirring occasionally to keep from scorching. When thick, stir in vanilla, and set aside.

Dough:

4-6 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking soda
3 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 cup solid shortening
3 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup buttermilk (or 1 tablespoon vinegar mixed with 1 cup milk to sour it)

To 4 cups flour, add baking soda and cream of tartar; set aside. In another bowl, cream together shortening and brown sugar, beat in eggs and vanilla. Gradually add flour mixture to the sugar mixture, mix well. Gradually add all of milk and remaining flour alternately to batter until it reaches dough consistency.

Roll out dough ⅛-inch thick, cut 3- or 4-inch circles with cookie cutter or drinking glass with cutting edge dipped in flour. Put approximately 1 heaping tablespoon filling in center of dough circle, moisten about ½-inch of outer edge of bottom circle, and cover with another dough circle. Take a fork dipped in flour and press the dough together around entire edge to seal cookie. Bake at 350 degrees until bottom of cookie slightly browns — approximately 18 minutes.

Makes about 50 cookies. Cheryl writes, I have never tried to cut recipe in half, but I would never get away with it because they are very good and never last long!

Chocolate And Cappuccino: Gifts To 'Jar' The Senses

(NAPS) — For many people, nothing warms up a cold winter day like a mug of hot chocolate or a steaming cup of cappuccino. Now it's possible to package that feeling for a delectable holiday gift. All it takes is a jar, a little decoration and a little imagination. Just add water.

The gift of a dry mix — whether it's for rich, creamy Hot Chocolate or for an aromatic Cappuccino — can be a delicious way to give a taste of the holiday spirit to the hard-to-shop-for people on your list. Recipe jars like these can also be given for other events, such as housewarming and tree trimming parties.

These two recipes offer the natural sweetness of Domino Sugar, for a fresh flavor each time a cup is brewed. After layering the dry ingredients, add a personal touch by selecting colorful fabric, ribbon or trinkets and attaching a recipe card.

Dry mixes, packaged in decorative jars, can make for lovely, practical holiday gifts to warm the heart and soul.

Other ways to make a gift jar unique include pairing the mix with homemade holiday biscotti or cookies. Or add some zip to the mix itself with chocolate chips, mini marshmallows or cinnamon sticks

Beware Of Last Minute Holiday Purchases

COLUMBUS, Ohio — If you're one of the millions of consumers who still need to get their holiday shopping completed, watch out — not for determined shoppers with sharp elbows, but for spending more than you bargained for.

"With the uncertainty in the job market in the year ahead, it's probably best to be generally cautious" about getting into too much debt, said Sharon Seiling, family resource management specialist for Ohio State University Extension and associate professor of consumer and textile sciences in the College of human ecology. She said there could be a temptation to buy it now because "it's on sale," which may over-burden the charge accounts. "Even if you get something on sale, if it takes you three or four months to pay it off, then it might be more expensive than if it hadn't been on sale and you were able to pay cash."

The consequences of racking up too much debt can be serious. In fact, the administrative office of the U.S. Courts announced in August that new bankruptcies filed during the second quarter of 2002 and for the previous 12 months set all-time records. Filings for the three-month period ending in June were the highest single quarter in history.

"This season, it would help if you make a spending plan and stick to it," Seiling said. "Don't let the holidays become a financial burden."

She offered some guidance to keep on budget during the holidays:

— Keep track of your spending, especially any purchases you put on credit. You don't want to be surprised after the holidays with a huge unanticipated bill. Take along a small notebook to record purchases and keep all receipts in an envelope.

— Make a list of what you want to buy, and don't stray from it. What seems like a bargain today could easily become fodder for tomorrow's garage sale, where you sell it at a substantial loss.

Talk to relatives now about spending limits on gifts or drawing names instead of buying for everyone. "Take the opportunity to talk about holiday spending on gifts, entertainment and travel, to make sure everyone feels comfortable about what they're giving and how they're celebrating."

— On the flip side, don't pressure other family members to spend more than they comfortably can. "That pressure can be subtle," Seiling said. Family members who refuse to abide by previously agreed-upon spending limits or who discourage drawing names could shame others into spending more than they can afford.

This is also a good time to talk with children about the true meaning of the holidays and about reasonable expectations for gifts, Seiling said. Too often, parents feel uncomfortable about that kind of conversation, but it's one that's vital to keep children and teens aware of real-world expenses and priorities.

This is also a good time to start planning for next year's holiday spending, Seiling said. Consumers who keep good track of their spending now can form a plan to save enough money each month in 2003 to be able to pay cash for purchases next year.

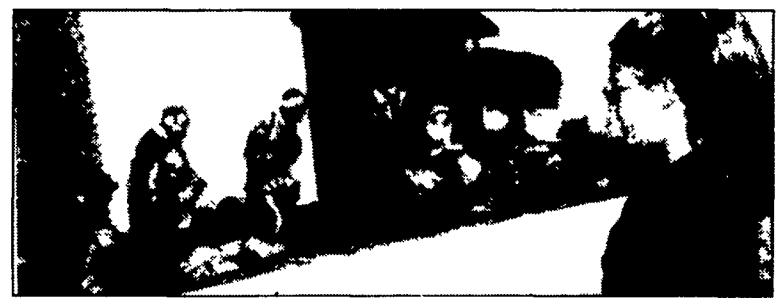
Kids Korner

Re-enacting the origin of Christmas are junior high youth from Midway Church of the Brethren, Lebanon. From left are Adam Keller, Jordan Landis, Meridith and Morgan Balsbaugh, Kelly Patches, Matthew Balsbaugh, Jarold Balsbaugh, Ryan Patches, and Joe Vigilante.



Every year Sarah Witmer, 10, helps her grandmother set up this nativity scene. Her grandmother, Nancy Witmer, has between 20-30 different nativity sets.

A tired but happy Sarah collapses beside these bundles she packed with clothing, toy, toothpaste, toothbrush, soap, a towel and a washcloth.

The Greatest Christmas Gift Isn't Wrapped In Paper

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Every year many children make lists of all the presents that hope to open on Christmas Day.

But in some areas of the world and even in Pennsylvania and other states, children will not receive presents. These are children whom adults refer to as "needy." They may have only one parent, but even if they have two parents, the family doesn't have enough money to buy them presents.

Richard and Nancy Witmer, Manheim, wanted their grandchildren to see beyond the commercialism of the holiday season and find joy and fulfillment in the true meaning of Christmas. They wanted their grandchildren to help others in need.

One of the ways they helped needy families was to pack a "Christmas Bundle."

Packing a Christmas Bundle is a project sponsored by the Mennonite Central Committee, which asks families to purchase supplies and wrapped them in a towel. Some of the items wrapped in the bundle are an outfit of clothing, top, toothpaste, toothbrush, soap, and washcloth. The bundles are designated for either a boy or a girl.

One day, Joshua Witmer, 7, helped his grandma (Nancy Witmer) assemble the items to be wrapped in bundles designated for boys. Another day, his sister, Sarah, 10, helped wrap bundles for girls. As they worked together, they talked about families and children who might receive the bundles. They hoped the children would have as much fun opening the bundles as they had putting them together.

One evening after school, Joshua and Sarah drove in the car with their grandmother to deliver the bundles to the MCC building in Ephrata. A staff person showed them the warehouse where all the bundles were stored until loaded on a huge truck for delivery.

Sarah and Joshua also like to go Christmas caroling with their parents, Richard Jr. and Jennifer Witmer, Manheim, and grandparents. Every year the Witmers accompany a group from Hernley's Mennonite Church. They visited homes where older people and handicapped people live. These people seldom are able to leave their homes, and are happy to have people visit them to sing favorite Christmas carols.

Later the caroling group return to church to sip hot chocolate or coffee and eat Christmas cookies.

Sarah also likes to help her grandmother set up nativity sets. Her grandmother collects many different kinds of nativity sets. She has between 20-30. While placing the manager, the baby Jesus, Mary, Joseph, the wisemen, and the shepherds, it's intriguing to think of the first Christmas night when Jesus was born.

Some children such as the junior high youth group at Midway Church of the Brethren, Lebanon, portray the first Christmas. They dress as shepherds, the wisemen, angels, and Mary or Joseph. They set up a manager scene. This year, the group acting out the scene in several different locations. Adam Keller and Jordan Landis dressed as shepherds, Meridith and Morgan Balsbaugh dressed as angels, Kelly Patches portray Mary, Matthew Balsbaugh pretended he was Joseph, and the wisemen were Jarod Balsbaugh, Ryan Patches, and Joe Vigilante.

These are a few of the things that children do to celebrate Christmas. Instead of thinking about what they want to get, they focus on what they can do to make others happy.

Christmas caroling is a meaningful tradition for young and old. Here a group from Hernley's Mennonite Church, Manheim, sing Christmas carols for older members in the community. Later the carolers return to the church to sip hot chocolate or coffee and munch on Christmas cookies.

Joshua Witmer, 7, helped assemble these Christmas bundles to be distributed to needy children in Pennsylvania.

Put Some Punch In Your Holiday Party Recipes

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Trying to wrap up last minute details for holiday entertainment?

Want a few ideas to inject some flair into holiday decor and into party fare?

Marjorie Shiner of the Nosegay Florist offers several ideas for creating flower arrangments.

"Don't follow the rules in flower design — do what you like visually," she said. She offered some tips for creating your own floral centerpieces.

• Group colors for impact.

• Insert picks or wooden dowels in apples, pears, and other fruit to hold in place in an arrangement. The wooden dowel swells inside the fuit and holds it in position.

• Use a soup tureen, punch bowl, or pedestal cake server as a centerpiece. Wrap a flowering vine such as Italian russet around bottom of bowl and tie with twisties to keep in position. Tuck lemons and limes around the vine or greens.

• Fill a glass with fresh cranberries. Insert flowers. The cranberries will keep flowers in position.

• If roses or other fresh flowers droop from an air bubble, place in very hot faucet water, and cut stem. If it doesn't revive, cut off rose head and float in a pedestal glass.

The holidays are the perfect opportunity to delight your guest with some wholesome and great tasting dairy punches.

These drinks are great for a small gathering or a church-filled with people. Not only do they taste great, but you are also getting calcium and other important nutrients that your body needs to stay strong.

So start today, and vow to make dairy products part of your life, and add more punch to your holiday drinks.

CRANBERRY EGGNOG CHEESECAKE

Crust:
1½ cups crushed coconut bar cookies
6 tablespoons butter, melted

Filling:
1 cup sugar, divided
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1½ cups dairy eggnog
2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup whipping cream
1 can (16 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce

Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, combine cookie crumbs and butter.

Press onto bottom and part way up sides of 9-inch springform pan. Bake 8 to 10 minutes, or until golden. Cool completely on wire rack.

For filling: combine ½ cup sugar, gelatin and salt in medium-sized heavy saucepan. Beat egg yolks slightly and combine with eggnog; gradually stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over low to medium heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved and sauce is slightly thickened. Do not boil.

Remove from heat and cool slightly. Beat cream cheese, orange peel and vanilla until fluffy. Stir in cooked mixture until well blended. Refrigerate until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon.

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar, until frothy. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar; beat until stiff and glossy.

Beat cream until stiff peaks form. Fold whites and whipped cream into cream cheese mixture.

Puree cranberry sauce in food processor or blender until smooth. Spoon ⅓ of cream cheese mixture into crust. Top with ⅓ cranberry puree. Swirl cranberry mixture into cream cheese mixture using a spatula.

Repeat layers twice. Refrigerate several hours or overnight.

To serve: place cake on a serving plate. Loosen sides of cake with a spatula. Carefully remove sides of pan. Refrigerate until serving time. Yield one 9-inch round cake.

Virginia Dairy Maids Attend Training Seminar

WINCHESTER, Va. — The Virginia Dairy Princess Program recently conducted a seminar for dairy promotion participants.

The day started with a tour of Hood Dairy Plant in Winchester, Virginia. Mike Suever gave the tour of dairy plant and allowed participants to see every part of the operation.

The seminar was conducted in the home of one of the dairy maids Alexa Stoner from American Dairy Association presented fun-filled workshops about public speaking, promotion, and media tips

Beauty consultant Laura Lloyd and former Virginia Princess Lindsay Potts taught a hair and beauty workshop The girls had their personal health questions answered, hair tips given, and their nails done. The girls left feeling more confidence in their appearance and ready to go out and promote milk.

The seminar included the official kick-off of the "Udderly Delicious Royal Recipes Cookbook " The girls were challenged to sell as many cookbooks as possible, as the funds raised will support the promotions and also go toward starting a scholarship for the Virginia dairy princess. The cookbooks have more than 400 recipes from members of the Virginia Dairy Princess Program.

Laura Jackson offers cookbook selling tips to Virginia dairy maids as they begin the fund-raiser for the scholarship program.

The cookbooks make great gifts for that special someone on your list. If you are interested, the cookbook sells for $10 plus $3.50 shipping and handling This is the first fundrasier for the program and we hope it will be a success.

Udderly Delicious Royal Cookbook Let's You Put Your 'Moo-ney' Where Your 'Moouth' Is

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

WINCHESTER, Va. — The "Udderly Delicious Royal Recipes Cookbook, put out by the Virginia Dairy Princess Program will let you put your "moo-ney" where you 'moouth" is.

It's hot off the press, chocked full of recipes to serve the family, the homemade gift maker and yes, even the dog. Best of all its purpose is that of benefiting the Virginia Dairy Princess Program and launching an educational scholarship program for the dairy princesses. So far these hard-working ambassadors of the Virginia dairy industry have had to work on a "self-pay" basis.

According to Marty Potts, Purcellville, one of the state coordinators, the scholarship program will offer incentives and support for a college education. The princesses average 2000 appearances each year. The program coordinators are depending on the scholarship generating incentives for the girls, Potts said.

"When the girls make an appearance they are pretty well paying for themselves," said Potts, adding, "We are trying to do things the girls will be proud of, and take the weight (responsibility) off their moms."

'We are not funded. We are based completely on donations."

Because they believe so strongly that the dairy princess program is a worthwhile investment for the dairy industry, Potts and Laura Dufford Jackson, another coordinator, spent a year collecting recipes and getting the cookbook organized.

Potts says "Udderly Delicious. " is a compilation of recipes of farm kitchens in Virginia that have come from about 40 dairy princesses, dairy maids, and families.

Completely indexed, the easy-to-use spiral bound cookbook includes recipe sections for appetizers, soups, main dishes, vegetables and desserts. It also boasts a calorie counter section that will probably be consulted often by the diet-conscious individual.

Additionally, kitchen hints galore are included and the collector of recipes may add to the book in the open space thats provided for that purpose.

Copies of the "Udderly Delicious Royal Recipes Cookbook" may be obtained for $10 plus $3.50 shipping and handling from Marty Potts, 35549 Potts Lane, Purcellville, VA 20132.

To order by telephone call Marty Potts at (540) 668-6970 or Laura Jackson at (540) 837-1891.

Historical Flavor Permeates Inn By The Side Of The Road

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — The essence of an elusive woman named "Eselyn" lingers on in a very personal dresser set of solid sterling silver, crafted in 1903. That's because her name is inscribed on it.

According to Robert Woody, a specialist in antique silver, who operates "At the Sign of the Sycamore," in Guilford, Conn., the era of sterling silver dresser sets peaked between 1890-1920. These was great interest in the asymmetrical floral pattern they featured.

The antique collection includes implements Eselyn would have found useful and convenient in maintaining her personal beauty and hygiene. Whoever gave the set to Eselyn had cared enough to personalize it.

Amongst the pieces available to Eselyn were a collar button hook, shoe button hook, shoe horn, nail buffer, nail scissors, nail file, nail knife, nail cleaner, toothbrush, clothes brush, hair brush, comb, hand mirror, powder jar, crystal rouge jars.

The very collectible ensemble, however, was in gross disrepair prior to undergoing a meticulous restoration by Philadelphia silversmiths. With time-consuming precision, Ed Claycomb replaced each boar bristle in the highly valuable hairbrush and clothes brush. As he worked he consulted often with the sets owner, Janice (Taylor) Fitzgerald.

Janice and her husband Dennis Fitzgerald are innkeepers of the only bed and breakfast inn in the city of Harrisonburg. They have dubbed it "By The Side Of The Road."

Janice says By The Side Of The Road is, itself, a philosophical tribute to a poem by Sam Walter Foss entitled: "The House by the Side of the Road."

"We, wish to provide rest for the weary and a welcome retreat.'

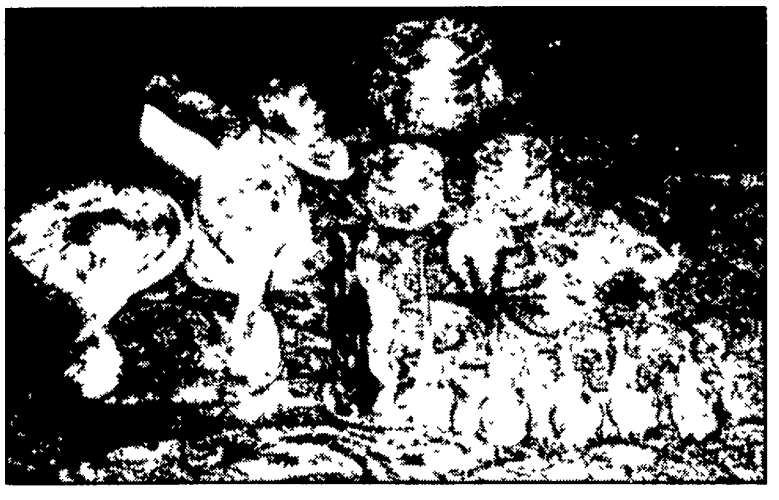
When Janice wanted to incorporate the tradition of her family into the decor of one of the inns' suites, the inspiration came to entitle it the 'Eselyn Taylor Suite." In addition to the dresser set, the room features a canopied queen tester bed and the wide floor planks that are original.

The inn is basically a tribute to Janice's mother's captivation with the gracious Victorian era and the style of things with which she filled her own home.

Janice's nostalgic connection to the dresser set stems from always having seen it exhibited at home. Her mother had happened upon the collection years earlier and purchased it.

In the hands of Janice Fitzgerald is a treasure from her childhood that's as dear to her now as ever, a book of the Christmas Story. She likes to sit by the Christmas tree and reminisce over it. With each turn of another page are new shapes of visitors to the Bethlehem stable, progressing through a sequence of events when Christ was born.

Situated beside the Garber's Church Road, this 1789 Flemish bond house was once a hub of religious activity as the home of Mennonite Bishop Peter Burkholder. It also served as a hospital during the Civil War and failed all attempts to be torched by Union soldiers.



This sterling silver dresser set (circa 1903) is engraved with the name of the woman to whom it was once presented: "Eselyn." Later it was purchased by the mother of Janice (Taylor) Fitzgerald. In tribute to her mother, Fitzgerald had the set completely restored by Philadelphia silversmiths. The dresser set also has a silver mark of Wilcox and Waggoner, craftsmen who produced the sets in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

'My mother was a great lover of the Victorian era," said Janice. "The dresser set was always on display all my life."

Also, on the premises is an old adjacent summer house (circa 1840). Janice says it underwent restoration and a transformation in honor of Dennis' family. So its called the Fitzgerald Cottage. The upper level had been a work shop and the lower area still a dirt floor. Despite its two-storied elegance, history is preserved and the evidence of warm, old-fashioned friendliness still exists in the former out-building.

Likewise, in the main house, the alcove of original multi-hued brickwork (circa 1790) is exposed in one suite.

An original claw foot bath tub and a queen antique burled walnut bed are featured in another suite.

The dresser set account is but a fraction of the stories connected to the inn, which is comprised of two acres and borders "Possum Twist Hollow." The inn is located within city limits and has a marvelous view of the neighbor's pond.

Both externally and internally the place has long been marinating in all kinds of historical flavors.

To wit, the house itself was built shortly following the American Revolution by German settler Michael Miller. Miller opted for a Flemish bond construction. The bricks were laid in a unique pattern so the wall thickness would be 15-inches.

"When Flemish bond is used," Janice says, "It's meant to last forever."

The house is stout enough to withstand almost any onslaught. Thus, during the Civil War, it was used as a hospital for the sick and injured soldiers following the 1864 "burning of the Valley" by General Philip Henry Sheridan.

The persistent Union soldiers, without success, tried to ignite the house three times. They finally gave it up and moved on, the house behind them remained intact because the locust wood foundation timbers were flame retardant.

The Fitzgeralds are very determined to maintain the interior Cross and Bible doors that are in the house. Ironically, amongst their collectibles, however, is an antique slot machine which seems at cross-purposes with the influence of a notable church leader who once lived there.

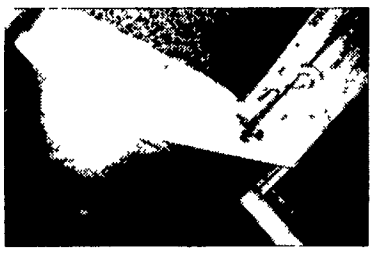
Peter Burkholder was one of the earliest Mennonite bishops in Virginia. He lived in the house for years but never owned it himself. Burkholder apparently distinguished the house by conducting church services in it.

After his death in 1846, the descendants of Burkholder continued to occupy the house. The Burkholders who gathered to worship, according to Janice, later organized a congregation called Weaver's Mennonite Church.

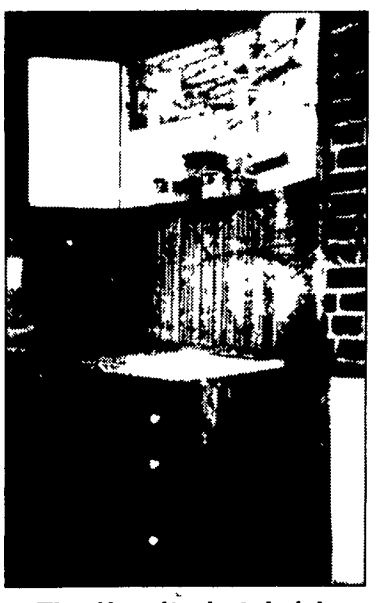
"Dennis and I are preservationists," she says. "We believe in preserving what's of value. Our guests are very respectful of their surroundings" she added.

About 25 years ago, Dennis bought the Hoosier hutch (circa 1910) for Janice. Although she is attached to it for sentimental reasons, she certainly makes use of it during gourmet breakfast preparations for guests at the bed and breakfast. The hutch was made in Newcastle, Ind. by the Hoosier Mfg. Co. and these days adds just the right flavor of nostalgia to the otherwise very modern kitchen.

Functional pieces such as the compartmentalized Hoosier hutch came to the rescue of females in the days when folks managed with so much less than today's cooks. In the compact unit there are small upper cupboards, flour and sugar bins, bread compartment, spice jars, lower door storage, drawers and a work area



One suite boasts an original claw foot bathtub still in mint condition.



The Hoosier hutch (circa 1910) is a functional antique for innkeepers at "By the Side of the Road" Bed and Breakfast. In the 1900s, these pieces offered homemakers and housewives the convenience of compartmentalized bins for things they used most — sugar, flour, spice jars, bread, and so forth.

Old Xmas Tree Lights New Collector Turn On

Vintage Christmas tree lights are yet another popular Yule season collectible. It doesn't matter if the candles in the 19th century tin holders aren't lighted. Or, if the fanciful milk glass cartoon character bulbs or the decorative star lights can no longer turn on. Like Christmas tree ornaments from yesteryears they are hung as ornaments.

However, they aren't cheap unless you find them at a garage sale.

The development of new ways to use electricity to light the Christmas tree was the American contribution to tree lighting history. Before Thomas Edison invented the light bulb, candles lit the Christmas tree. It was a dangerous practice with fires claiming many lives over the years.

Even earlier in the 19th century, a wick, floating in oil and held in half a nutshell, was placed precariously in tree branches. By the middle of the 19th century, candleholders were attached to branches, with small dishes to catch drippings.

What seemed a revolutionary invention at the time, was the counterweighted candleholder, invented by Charles Kirchoff in Newark, N.J., in 1867. It hooked over the branches and the candle was held upright, using a counterbalancing weight, suspended on a wire beneath the candle. The weight, made of unfired clay, was a ball the size of a cherry. They were often painted or dusted with glitter. By 1878 there were double counterweighted holders, with two weights on the end of an upside-down v-shaped wire. These often had weights cast in molds, shaped like stars, birds, and cherubs.

Yet another invention, the spring-clip candleholder was patented in 1879. These clip-ons remained in use even after strings of electric lights became popular around the 1920s. Despite the fire hazard many people couldn't give up the beauty of candles.

Even early American glass factories made small, tumblerlike glasses, lit by a wick, attached to a piece of wood or cork that floated in oil on top of water.

They were hung from the branches. These lights came in colored or clear glass and in patterns popular in other pieces of Victorian pressed glass. Among them are patterns in diamond cut, hobnail and "thousand eye." Pretty as they were they weighed down the branches.

By the 1880s small tin candle holders clipped on to the tree branches. Most interesting, and very collectible, were those decorated in relief with pine cones and other motifs, and painted in various colors. They were imported from Germany.

General Electric bought Edison's rights in 1890 and began making miniature Christmas tree lights. However, they were very costly. Only the children of the rich could enjoy their enchantment. A string of twenty-eight sockets with bulbs cost $12 dollars. In those days, that was a working man's salary for a week.

The Ever-Ready Company of New York began making strings of lights in 1903 and other companies followed their lead.

The first figural Christmas tree lights were made in Austria in 1909. They were hand-painted and hand-made by the Kremenetsky Electric Company of Vienna. Animals, fruit, and Santa Claus were among the subjects. At the same time General Electric also offered hand-made and hand-painted figural bulbs. However, by 1919 they were machine made.

World War I marked the entry of the Japanese into the Christmas light bulb market. The earliest Japanese bulbs were hand blown from clear glass into metal molds. They were hand painted, but most of those that have survived have flaked paint.

Those made in the 1920s can be recognized by the use of thick milk-glass. Their cartoon characters of Little Orphan Annie and Dick Tracy have an oriental look. Imports ceased by World War II.

Japanese milk glass lantern lights from the 1920s-1930s.

Tree lights became an art form in the 1930s. The first innovation in Christmas tree lights came when bubble lights were invented by Carl Otis, who worked for Montgomery Ward. They were based on the use of methaline chloride that would boil or "bubble." They were introduced with the name "bubble lights"by Noma Lites in 1945.

However, not until the mid 1950s did they become popular.

Probably the ultimate in beauty were the "Wonder Star" lights, made by the Matchless Electric Company, Chicago, Illinois from the mid-1930s to the late 1940s. They were made of single or double rows of glass points, forming a star. The center was a faceted "jewel." Each point was hand-cut in Czechoslovakia. They came crystal, frosted or in colors of green, amber, amethyst, etc.

What was unique about them, in addition to their beauty, was that they were sometimes wired with blinkers to flash off and on.

CLUES: Growing interest by collectors has resulted in reproductions of bubble lights in the 1970s, along with 19th century pressed glass candle holders in cobalt blue.

Survey Of Tower Silo Unloading Finds Impressive Speeds

MADISON, Wis. — Surveys of producers over the past several months indicate that tower silos are capable of unloading at some impressive speeds. The work done by Dr. Brian Holmes of the University of Wisconsin focused on center discharge silo unloading systems and well-designed traditional unloading systems

The survey involved calling producers who were actually using the systems in their operations. Most producers provided a range of capacities in which their system typically operates. Because of that, finding an exact number as an average is not possible. However, the average unloading speed reported from all producers contacted would fall near or slightly over 600 pounds of forage (moisture as fed) per minute. "These speeds fall right in line with what we have always expected from well-designed unloading systems," notes Leroy Shefchik, chairman of the International Silo Association.

The numbers reported by producers were as high as 1,500 pounds per minute at the top of a 24-foot by 88-foot tower in Seymour, Wis. Unloading speeds did tend to fall as the unloaders worked toward the bottom of the silo. Shefchik notes, "Even with these lower speeds near the bottom of the silo, the average speed of unloading throughout the silo was found to be significantly higher than most would have expected.

The falling speeds near the bottom of the silo are not necessarily a bad thing. According to Shefchik, "These lower speeds indicate that the forage is packed exceptionally well. The center discharge unloading systems distribute the forage as the silo is filled. This creates an incredible density near the bottom of the storage unit. It is commonly understood that higher densities result in less oxygen being in contact with the feed which minimizes spoiled feed and dry matter losses."

While there is little research available, reports from users of large tower silos report densities near 70 pounds per cubic foot of storage. According to University of Wisconsin studies, the density of forage in a bunker silo should be about 45 pounds per cubic foot, and that of a silage bag is typically close to 33 pounds per cubic foot.

High speed unloading has long been a focus for producers who feed forages. Ernie Oelker, the agricultural county extension agent in Columbiana County Ohio, notes, "I had long felt that high speed unloading was one of the advantages of horizontal storage methods." "Through the survey information provided by the University of Wisconsin, it is apparent that a well-designed unloading system is more than capable of feeding any size herd," notes Shefchik.

Shefchik goes on to analyze what these speeds mean for operations of various sizes saying, "At the 600 pound per minute rate that this survey says is average, we can expect that 36,000 pounds of feed can be removed from the silo in one hour. Thirty-six thousand pounds of forage should be enough forage to feed 500 top-producing milk cows for a day

Feeding that many cows with one silo unloader in an hour may seem impossible to many, but those are the facts. For larger herds more than one silo can be unloaded at a time, making the unloading speeds unlimited. For smaller herds, the forage required for a herd of 100 cows can be unloaded in about 12 minutes, all with the push of a button."

Massey Ferguson Offers New 220XL Swather

ATLANTA, Ga. — The new Massey Ferguson 220XL swather offers improved performance with quieter cab, new hydro-transmission control and air ride seat new draper heads with increased lift height, new knife drive gear box, and many more new productive features

"The MF 220XL swather answers the demands of farmers for increased productivity in large acreages of small grains and canola, as well as grass seed crops such as fescue" said Verlin Linder, Massey Ferguson harvesting marketing manager

In tall heavy crops, the MF 220XL swather can lay down the swaths today's high capacity combines require

Ground drive is provided by an engine-driven hydrostatic pump and motors at each drive wheel. This advanced hydrostatic drive system eliminates the need for drive belts and chains, and reduces maintenance time and expense

A drive wheel tread width of 134 inches, vertical under-frame clearance of 40 inches, and a wheelbase of 137 inches, make the MF 220XL swather one of the most stable to operate, insures the heaviest of swaths are not disturbed, and easily handles wide headers

Krause's new TL 3000 disc ripper provides single path soil tilth and crop residue management.

New Disc Ripper Offers More Residue Cutting, Deeper Tillage

HUTCHINSON, Kansas — Krause Corporation recently introduced the TL 3000 Disc Ripper in 5 and 7 shank rigid, or 7 and 9 shank folding models. The TL 3000 provides single pass soil tilth, crop residue management and fall seed bed conditioning.

Designed for high-speed, high horsepower primary tillage, the largest TL 3000 models provide an excellent match for tractors to 500 hp. The five shank TL 3000 is rated for over 400 horsepower. Massive main frames offer more residue cutting and deep tillage penetrating weight than competitive brands.

Universal point mounting shank design accepts JD Laser-Rip™, Nichols and DMI Tiger® points, allowing the operator to choose the point with the best agronomic performance for their conditions.

Folding 7 and 9 shank models boost efficiency in transport with a narrow 13-foot 9-inch transport width.

Case IH Marks Century Of IH Farm Equipment

RACINE, Wis. — In 2002 Case IH celebrates the 100th anniversary of the formation of an important cornerstone in its foundation the International Harvester Company.

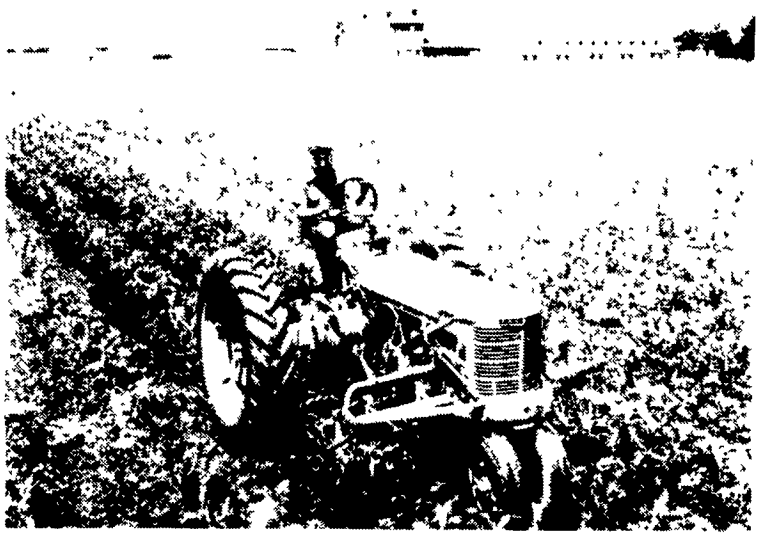
International Harvester played a critical role in the evolution of Case IH. Many of the same elements that established International Harvester as the leader in the agricultural revolution 100 years ago continue to distinguish Case IH as a leader in today's farm equipment industry.

"The signature red paint you see on all Case IH equipment today is only one of many links to our proud past," says Jim Irwin, vice president of the Case IH North American agricultural business.

"The legacies first created by Cyrus McCormick and Jermone Increase Case, and strengthened in the generations that followed, still define Case IH today."

Case IH agricultural equipment is distributed through one of the farm equipment industry's strongest dealer networks, with more than 4,000 professional dealers worldwide. Case IH dealers offer a full line of equipment, parts, after the sale support and financial services.

The modern agricultural equipment dealer structure is a tradition that began with International Harvester's predecessor, the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company. Company founder, Cyrus McCormick, revolutionized the dealer hierarchy and centralized his sales and sales support organization. McCormick was also the first implement manufacturer to offer installment buying, as well as full refund guarantees to unsatisfied customers. Customer satisfaction remains at the heart of Case IH today.



Farmall H tractor: In 1922 International Harvester unveiled the Farmall tractor, the single most popular tractor line in agricultural equipment history. The new tractor line enabled farmers to add implements and attachments, rather than purchase individual machines. The first Farmall tractors were painted gray, but in 1936 the color was changed to red as a safety feature.

International Harvester was one of the first manufacturers to realize the importance of providing an integrated line of equipment to meet all of a producer's needs. In addition to reapers, mowers and grain binders needed for harvesting, International Harvester also offered harrows, cultivators, plows, wagons, corn shellers, manure spreaders and cream separators in its early years. The company's first tractor was introduced in 1906, helping to establish gasoline engines as a safer alternative to steam.

In 1922, International Harvester unveiled the legendary Farmall tractor. This first all-purpose tractor allowed farmers to mount implements and attachments to create an integrated equipment system. The innovative design used a high rear-wheel drive with small and narrow front wheels, intended to run between the rows. During the company's heyday following World War II, International Harvester also produced trucks, a wide range of construction equipment, milking machines, cream separators, refrigerators and freezers.

When formed in 1902, the International Harvester name showcased the company's "international scope," a tradition established with Cyrus McCormick's first reaper sale to Austria in 1850.

Within a year of its formation, International Harvester was rapidly expanding into foreign markets and establishing manufacturing plants throughout the world. By 1910, International Harvester equipment, under a variety of brand names, was sold from Budapest to Buenos Aires. Case IH continues this international tradition with dealers and manufacturing plants in over 150 countries.

Shaver Offers Self-Contained Post-Driver For Skid-Steer Loaders

GRAETTINGER, Iowa — Shaver Manufacturing has unveiled the newest addition to their lineup of top-quality post-drivers. The new OH-100 is designed for operators who need a mounting and self-contained unit that is powerful, easy to maneuver and requires minimal hydraulic power.

The OH-100 drives a four-inch to five-inch post in 10-15 seconds; drives steel, wood or even railroad ties; requires only 10-15 gpm; and has its own five-gallon oil reservoir.

The new skid-steer loader-mounted post-driver is specially designed for farmers, contractors, ranchers, landscapers and maintenance departments looking for a simple, economical and efficient solution to installing steel or wood fence posts.

The OH-100 unit can easily be maneuvered around buildings, storage sheds, trees and other obstacles. When this unit is mounted to the front of a skid-steer and secured with the "fast-tach" bracket, only two remote hydraulic hookups are required. As the machine drives the posts, oil is pumped through the hookups from the post driver's own five-gallon oil reservoir.

Super Bowl Goes To Texas

BARNESVILLE, Ohio — The Dickinson Cattle Company, Inc. (DCCI) recently sold a one-half interest in the Texas Longhorn bull "Super Bounce," a 6 year old, to Red McCombs of San Antonio, Texas, owner of the Minnesota Vikings The bull will live at DCCI in Ohio, half of the year and then be transported 1,300 miles to McComb's Texas ranch.

"Super Bounce," weighing in just under a ton, is the first registered Longhorn bull to grow over 70 inches of horn at under four years of age The International Texas Longhorn Association records large horn measurements as a sign of breed purity (The tip to tip is a straight measured line from the longest point between the outer horn tips.)

Texas Longhorns have increased in popularity over the years due to their ruggedness, lean high protein meat, efficient grazing habits, ease of calving, longevity, and gainability with minimal care Numerous high profile investors have been attracted to Texas Longhorns for investment purposes

McCombs is focusing his attention on the Vikings Football efforts and the Super Bowl, so it was decided to file registration papers to change the bull's name to "Super Bowl."

Semen is available from Super Bowl at $100 per ½ cc straw He is expected to have several hundred calves born by artificial insemination plus about 150 calves annually from natural breeding. For more information on "Super Bowl," the bull, rope into the Website www.texas-longhorn.com.

ROW CROP TRACTOR PERFORMANCE TESTING

Deer Creek offers many different ways to make sure your tractor is ready to roll in the spring. Call us about having any of these function tests performed.

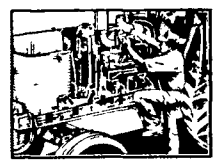
DYNO
Check your tractor's horsepower and performance - are you getting everything you need?

OIL SCAN
Check your oil condition - see if any contaminants are in your oil, and also check for any early signs of engine wear.

COOLANT SCAN
Same as oil scan, but this checks your coolant condition. Coolant breakdown is the number one cause of cylinder liner failure.

BATTERY AND CHARGING TEST
Check your electrical system and make sure you start in the spring.

HYDRAULIC TEST
Check your pressures and GPM



BALLAST
Is your tractor weighted properly?

R134a CONVERSION
Old style freon (R12) has risen dramatically in the last few years. It continues upward at a rate of roughly 35% more each year. R12 has not been manufactured anywhere in the world since 1995. As supplies continue to dwindle, costs rise sharply each year. The fact is soon you will not be able to obtain R12. As the cost of maintaining your R12 machine rises, it will become more cost effective to retrofit than use R12. Can you afford NOT to retrofit?

New Website Launched For State Farm Loan Programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new Website has just come online offering information, links and contacts about farm and agricultural industry loan programs offered through state agriculture departments, economic development agencies and other state agencies.

The National Council of State Agricultural Finance Programs' (NCOSAFP) new Website can be found at www.stateagfinance.org.

The Website features a directory and links to state agricultural loan programs offered throughout the country; and information about the common types of farm loan programs offered by the states, including:

- Aggie bond beginning farmers and ranchers loan programs
- State guaranteed agricultural loan programs
- Direct loan programs
- Loan participation programs
- Plus various agricultural processing, value-added and other state-based, specialized finance programs for producers and the agricultural industry.

"This is a good starting point for young farmers and ranchers wanting to learn about available state-sponsored agricultural finance programs. It's also good resource for lenders and policy makers that want to learn what's available in their home states and around the country," said David Wirth, chair of the NCOSAFP steering committee and executive director of the Illinois Farm Development Authority.

Happy Holidays!

At Susquehanna Valley Dairy we wish all our customers a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year Although milk prices have been low and cow prices have been high this will be our best year ever Thank you for your business

Listed below are a handful of our customers

- S Glick Manheim, bought a herd in Canada this August In all the heat he was shipping 81 lb per day
- R Martin New Holland bought a herd in Canada In the heat this summer he was shipping 83 lb per day
- J Oberholtzer New Holland bought a herd in Vermont that peaked in the high eighties
- J Esh Spring Garden bought a herd in Vermont that peaked at 87 lb per day
- C Petersheim Quarryville bought a herd in Vermont I met him at the New Holland horse sale this spring and he said his cows were averaging 97 lb per day

These are of course some of the highest producing herds however there are many more in the 70 and 80 lb range Another very encouraging thing is when a daryman tells me two or three years after buying a herd that he hasn t bought a cow since

What can a dairyman learn from this difficult year? Glenn Shirk, former extension agent, said In a difficult year dairymen need to learn to work smarter not harder" My dad always said a smooth sea never made a good sailor Will Rogers said Even if you re heading in the right direction you better keep moving or people will run over you

Help horses shed winter coats early and be good and ready for Spring work

Many diet providers are tempted to overfeed proteins and minerals The feeding program that provides 10 12 protein from grain and a good green hay that is free of dust or mold is adequate in most cases Most operations will benefit greatly from using this product as an addition to an already good feeding program It will provide the extra bloom that makes horsekeeping so rewarding
